The World's Rough Weather.

Sorry, Says Japan.

No Wheat Cook Book.

The Mystic Letters, O. P. M.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

ON THE OCEAN, in rough weather, it is some comfort to know that all the mass of water around you for 1,000 miles is disturbed, and your ship is not responsible for the rolling and pitching.

It is a comfort in this rough weather of finance, industry and public affairs generally to know that what we feel is not alone our own foolishness, but the education and troubles of the whole world, readjusting itself after the tempest of the great war.

EVERY COUNTRY has its troubles, some so violent as to make our own seem trifling. In every direction are repudiated bond issues, international quarreling, unemployment.

Even little Switzerland, marvelously secure as regards value of her bonds and currency, is troubled because Englishmen that climb mountains and Americans that admire them no longer crowd her hotels.

ON A CHILLY day in Florida, California or on the Riviera, "tourists" study weather reports from New York and Chicago. Americans can find comfort in the condition of nations around them. It should make us deeply grateful for what we have and what we have escaped.

Gloomy Puritan preachers of the Cotton Mather type told their congregations that the blessed in Heaven have their joys greatly increased as they look down on less fortunate friends and relatives burning in hell.

Such gloomy pleasure might be ours if we realized conditions in other nations.

JAPAN HAS NOT yet taken seriously the fact that an American consul was severely beaten by three Japanese soldiers, in his own automobile, his offense being apparently his nationality. Our secretary of state received "sincere regrets" over the incident from Japanese Ambassador Debuchi in Washington.

It was the sort of regret that a tennis player makes when he perfunctorily says, "sorry."

THE REGRETS have not been accepted as adequate by our State Department and will perhaps be made more convincing.

A time of war and easy victory naturally inflates Japanese or any other self-conceit.

Japan has against us two permanent grudges, one being Theodore Roosevelt's decision by which Japan believes she was robbed of the fruits of her victory over Russia—the other the totally mistaken belief that our exclusion of Asiatic immigration indicates contempt for the Japanese or belief in their inferiority.

A THIRD COMPLICATION is based on the extent to which our government has meddled, uselessly, in the Japanese-Chinese war. The incident of the attack by Japanese soldiers on an American consul will be smoothed over, doubtless.

But, the Asiatic problem and its possible complications for all western peoples stretches far ahead. Asia on the march, long ago was limited to the speed of shaggy ponies. Asia on the march today would go through the air at 250 miles an hour and faster, an important difference. That fact might interest our government in air defense.

THE SENATE gives 40,000,000 bushels of wheat from the Farm Board to the "needy unemployed." Nobody seems to know what the needy unemployed will do with the wheat unless they sell it back to farmers that sold it to the government.

Nobody has said anything about issuing a "wheat cook book" but that may come. Senator Capper, of Kansas, wanted the wheat given away and has his wish. Senator Borah says if the government wants to give away wheat, it should buy it from farmers that still have on hand 55 per cent of last year's crops.

UNCLE SAM has not made a brilliant financial success in the wheat business. Wheat sold in Chicago yesterday for 53 cents a bushel.

Uncle Sam paid 81 cents for wheat he is giving away. With storage and interest charges it costs him now $1.17.

However, the farmers were actually helped in a very difficult moment by government purchases and profit was comparatively unimportant.

JOSEPH P. DAY, famous real estate man, who would gladly have bought the whole Garden of Eden "on easy terms," says:

"The whole secret of success for many is O. P. M."

The three mystic letters "O. P. M." stand for "Other People's Money."

Recent revelations concerning foreign bonds dealings are a tribute to the power of "O. P. M." Mr. Clarence Dillon tells the Senate Finance Committee that his firm placed in foreign countries one thousand four hundred and ninety-one million American dollars, receiving of course, as profit a commission on each dollar.

So far, only "a few" of bonds placed by him in the United States have been defaulted. Thirty-seven millions of Bolivian and fifty-two millions of Brazilian bonds. He is sure that private debtors abroad will pay

WCAE Broadcasts Appeal for Searchers; Victims Vanish After Craft Dives in Fog

By GENE MYERS
International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 6.—Undaunted by lack of success in a hazardous flight over the Blue and South Mountains through a driving rainstorm, Gentry Shelton, St. Louis pilot, brought his plane down here today and prepared to renew the search for Mrs. Ruth Stewart, of St. Louis, and Mrs. Debbie Stanford, of Toronto, Ont.

Both women, who had "traded" planes with Shelton in order to try out his ship, were lost in a heavy fogbank over Dublin's Gap in the South Mountains last night while flying from Pittsburgh to New York. They had planned a 5,500-mile flight to Buenos Aires from New York.

CIRCLES VALLEY

After more than an hour of fruitless search through fog and mist today, Shelton and the International News Service reporter returned here, planning to take the air again at the earliest opportunity.

Shelton circled through the Cumberland Valley for an hour and a half this morning, swooping as low as 300 feet in an attempt to find traces of the missing plane.

Parents of Mrs. Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. William Woerner, were on the verge of collapse from worry in a local hotel.

Shelton and the Woerners landed here yesterday after the two plans had flown side by side from Pittsburgh until they reached the deep cut in the mountain chain near the Southern Pennsylvania line, where the Stewart ship disappeared.

WCAE AIDS SEARCH

Lee Dice, assistant manager at Bettis Airport, said that as so many planes from the vicinity of Harrisburg have joined in the search, no planes would be sent from the local port.

The Sun-Telegraph radio station WCAE was broadcasting appeals to residents in the isolated sections near Carlisle to aid in the search. Shelton requested the station to lend the assistance. Pilots of four Transcontinental and Western Air planes flying out of Bettis Field over the route followed by the women were ordered to assist in the search as they pass over the territory.

EX-SEWICKLEY MAN ENDS LIFE

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Robert D. Cochran, of Sewickley, Pa., today succeeded in his second attempt at suicide.

He shot himself through the head with a new rifle in the basements of a West Seventy-first street rooming house he and his wife were running. They had been trying to recoup the small fortune which Cochran had lost in the stock market two years ago, after he had sold his prosperous paint business in Sewickley for $175,000.

Cochran was found unconscious in the same basement three weeks ago with gas pouring from an open jet. He was taken to the hospital and recovered.

N. R. Van Kleeck, of 256 Thorn street, Sewickley, today said he had been notified by a New York undertaker of the death of his brother-in-law, Mr. Cochran. Besides his sister, Mrs. Van Kleeck, Cochran leaves his mother, Mrs. M. B. Cochran, in Sewickley.

Joan Bennett, Hurt By Fall, Makes Film

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Joan Bennett returned to motion picture work today for the first time since she was thrown from a horse she was attempting to tame in a production five months ago. The actress suffered the fracture of one hip.

Her engagement to Gene Markey, writer, recently was announced, but she said no date for the wedding would be set until the film in which she is working is completed.

Auto Victim Active But Mind Is Blank

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The case of Donald Douglas, 17, "living automaton," has physicians puzzled. Struck by an automobile a fortnight ago, he went into a coma from which his mind has not emerged, although physically he is active.

Jury Links Politicians In City Fund Probe; Schooley Plans Fight

Cite Many in Alleged Plot to Obtain Tax Rebates.

Health First Concern, However; Silent On Burgoyne.

Names of politicians and businessmen alleged to have received rebates of penalties and interest on delinquent city taxes were revealed today as the District Attorney's office began preparation of indictments recommended late yesterday by the grand jury in the investigation of Roy D. Schooley, deposed city treasurer.

The presentment made no charges against those named as receiving such rebates.

District Attorney A. T. Park said the December grand jury would be reassembled as soon as the indictments are prepared, probably in several days.

Many counts involving technical points of law will require 50 typewritten pages, he asserted.

STILL HUNT GRENET

Those named in the presentment are Schooley, charged with malfeasance and embezzlement; his missing former investigator, Arthur G. Burgoyne, charged with misdemeanor, embezzlement and fraudulent conversion, and Lasalle Girts, corporation representative, charged with conspiracy to defraud the city.

Park today said the investigation was over, but that he would keep after Samuel J. Grenet, Assemblyman and Republican chairman of the Twenty-seventh Ward. "If it takes a year to find him," Grenet is wanted to testify before the grand jury. Subpena servers after four days have been unable to find him.

The list of those receiving rebates is designated an exhibit in the grand jury's presentment. The jury set forth that the evidence presented disclosed that "those acquainted with the collector (the city treasurer is also delinquent tax collector) or having influential friends to introduce them to the collector, after taxes had become delinquent, were

Roy D. Schooley, former City Treasurer, today at his home at 4740 Maripoe street, showed more concern about his battle to regain health than about recommendations for indictment made by the grand jury.

Schooley, suffering from anemia, looks worn and haggard, and shows the effect of his illness, but the flash in his eye and the rasp to his voice indicate an unbroken spirit. It was the first time he had broken his silence since the investigation of his office started. He said:

"I am not even under charge yet. The big thing for me now is to get well, if I can."

Asked if he were going to stick it out and fight, he replied with vigor:

"I don't see why anyone should assume that I wouldn't."

Asked about Arthur G. Burgoyne and his whereabouts, Schooley refused to talk. Burgoyne, whose indictment also has been recommended by the grand jury, was special investigator in Schooley's office and his intimate friend.

Schooley asked for the latest news of the grand jury investigation. He listened quietly, lying on a couch in the living room. Once, with a half smile, he said he thought a group of auditors could make any record look bad.

Hyde Urges Loyalty To U. S. Government

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Loyalty to the government of the United States was urged last night by Secretary Arthur M. Hyde, of the Department of Agriculture in an address to master farmers of Nebraska. He asserted:

"America with all its faults has achieved wider distribution of wealth than any other nation. Stand by the cornerstones of our civilization, the church, the home and the schoolhouse."

FOREIGN BOND QUIZ AIRS GULF OIL GRANT

State Department Favored Loans Despite Warning, Commerce Aide Charges

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—A sensational story of the State Department encouraging Latin-American loans which were strongly disapproved of by the Department of Commerce and of concessions being granted to American corporations, including the Gulf Oil Company, a Mellon subsidiary, following flotation of the loans, was related today before the Senate Finance Committee by Grosvenor Jones, chief of the finance and investment division of the Department of Commerce.

Under questioning by Senator Johnson, author of the foreign securities investigation, Jones related that the Department of Commerce had strongly counseled against approving additional loans to Bolivia on theg round that the county was "already over-borrowed," but that the department had been overruled by the State Department.

"EMBARRASSING"

The reason given by the State Department, as related by Jones, was that "it might prove embarrassing to the United States if it turned down this loan at this time." Jones explained that Latin-American relations with the United States were strained at the time and the State Department felt it would further involve them by disapproving the loan.

The loan in question was for $23,000,000 and was floated by Dillon, Read & Co. It is now in default, as is another issue flotaed by this company for $14,000,000.

Jones informed the committee that shortly after Colombia had obtained a $20,000,000 loan in 1930 from the National City Bank, the Illinois Trust Company and the First National Bank of Boston, an oil concession in which the Gulf Oil Company, a Mellon concern, had a considerable interest, and which the Colombian government had canceled, was restored.

This $20,000,000 issue, Jones testified, was approved by the State Department despite reports re-

WASHINGTON HIKE TO BE SPEEDED

Forced March Ordered so Thousands May Arrive in Nation's Capital Tonight

After spending the night at Huntingdon, the main body of Father Cox's jobless march to Washington reached Harrisburg today.

From Pittsburgh to Huntingdon, hundreds of rain-soaked, footsore and bedraggled stragglers were given shelter and food during the night in scores of communities and farm houses on the William Penn highway.

A score of the marchers were treated at hospitals in Johnstown for minor injuries. Five were detained.

Father Cox today wired an urgent plea for trucks to leave Pittsburgh and pick up the stragglers of his army, estimated between 2,500 and 3,000, and either take them to Washington or back to Pittsburgh.

By DAVE JONES
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 6.—Western Pennsylvania's representatives of its unemployed, the 10,000 members of Father James R. Cox's army of the jobless, poured into Harrisburg this afternoon.

They were to pause briefly to hear an address by Gov. Pinchot and then start a forced drive to reach Washington tonight.

Gov. Pinchot, en route to his office, found the steps and lawns around the capitol jammed with the army's vanguard.

Before going to his office to await Father Cox, the Governor gave orders to a lunchroom in the basement of the capitol to give each of the marchers a cup of coffee and sandwiches and send the bill to him.

Tomorrow the army will ask President Hoover and Congress to adopt immediate measures to relieve the unemployment situation.

FOODLESS HOURS

A tired and tattered crowd, Father Cox's men filed into the city in almost 1,000 trucks and autos.

Hundreds upon hundreds of others, unable to find motor transportation, were struggling along Pennsylvania's highways, some of them hitch-hiking, others leaving the roads for freight trains, in a desperate effort to reach Washington by tomorrow morning.

Undismayed by the rigors of the first day's "march," the army, American flags flying from every

Jobless Near, Senate Adds To Guard

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Four uniformed policemen were added to the regular Senate staff of gallery doorkeepers today to guard against any disturbances.

Some of the advance guard of unemployed coming from Pittsburgh were here today. They readily received tickets of admission to the galleries from various members of Congress.

Meanwhile arrangements were made to reinforce Capitol police tomorrow by metripolitan reserves to prevent any disorder of the jobless demonstrators on their way here from Pennsylvania under the leadership of Father Cox.

Sergeant-at-Arms Kenneth Romney, of the House, has instructed Capt. S. J. Gnash, of Capitol police, to have his force treat the demonstrators as courteously as possible. He explained:

"We do not anticipate any trouble, and we do not want any."

RASKOB DECLARES DEMOCRATS MUST ACT ON PROHIBITION

PREDICTS SPLIT, CREATION OF NEW PARTY

Chairman Calls for Plank Giving People Vote on Dry Issue; Prefers 'Home Rule'

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The Democratic party must either grapple courageously and sensibly with the prohibition issue in 1932 or run the risk of a definite split between North and South—and the formation of a liberal third party.

With this as his warning and his text John J. Raskob national chairman appealed again to his party today to incorporate in its platform a plank pledging the people an opportunity to vote for a change preferably through the medium of his home rule plan of liquor control.

Briefly this plan would amend the Eighteenth Amendment so as to exempt from its provisions those states which by referendum vote to assume control of their own liquor problem within their own borders. This would leave those states desiring to remain dry still the protection of the federal police powers in the original Eighteenth Amendment.

POLL ANTI-DRY

To support his contention that a majority of the party is opposed to prohibition in its present form and to impress the national committee, which meets here this week, Raskob made public the results of his recent poll of the 77,500 persons who contributed funds to the party in 1928.

Replies received to date he reported total 25,578, and of this number 93 per cent favor submitting the prohibition question to the people for decision.

PROPOSES 'STRADDLE'

For himself, Chairman Raskob said he did not favor the party adopting either "a so-called wet or so-called dry plank." He favors merely the pledge that the people would be given an opportunity to vote if the Democrats are returned to power. Nor did he favor a wines and beer plank.

Even the southern dry states, four of which Hoover carried in 1928, voted in favor of Raskob's poll of contributors heavily in favor of resubmitting the question.

Raskob cited Arkansas, the home state of Senator Robinson, who upset the March meeting of the committee here by shouting that "You shall not force the mantle of the outlawed liquor traffic on the Democratic party," as one example.

The Arkansas record showed 78 out of each 100 contributors favored submitting the question to the people although only 27 per cent favored a straight out repeal amendment. And 56 per cent reported they did not believe the party could successfully ignore the issue next year.

Pennsylvania Vote Shows 97 Per Cent for Dry Poll

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Results of the prohibition questionnaire sent out by Chairman John J. Raskob of the Democratic National Committee to all Democratic contributors in the 1928 presidential campaign show that 97 per cent of those responding from Pennsylvania favor the resubmission of the Eighteenth Amendment to the people for decision in a popular referendum.

Here is how Pennsylvania contributors responded to the eight questions asked:

In favor of a short, concise platform, 94 per cent.

In favor of resubmission of the Eighteenth Amendment, 97 per cent.

In favor of requiring all future constitutional amendments to be ratified by the people instead of state legislatures, 99 per cent.

In favor of submitting the so-called home rule prohibition amendment to the people, 85 per cent.

In favor of submitting a straight prohibition repeal amendment to the people, 89 per cent.

Those preferring home rule amendment over proposal for straight prohibition repeal, 49 per cent.

Those believing that the Democratic platform can ignore prohibition by adopting a mere law-enforcement plank, 12 per cent.

Those in favor of submitting either the home rule or straight repeal amendment, 98 per cent.

AIR GULF OIL GRANT IN QUIZ

ceived from the Department of Commerce agent in Colombia advising that the government was "going wild on borrowing" and strongly counselling against further loans.

CONCESSION RESTORED

Jones told the committee that the Colombian oil concession had originally been obtained by a Colombian citizen named Barco and that after the Gulf Oil Company had obtained a share in this concession the government cancelled it. A few months after the $20,000,000 loan the government restored the concession, Jones declared, thus benefiting the Gulf Oil Company.

Senator Johnson asked:

"In other words, there was the keenest competition among American bankers and investment houses for these Latin-American loans?"

Jone said:

"In general that is correct. There were, however, two notable exceptions, J. P. Morgan & Co. and Kuhn, Loeb & Co."

Another witness today was James Speyer, head of Speyer & Co., New York investment bankers.

Asked if the League of Nations loans floated by his company were "guaranteed by the league," Speyer replied in the negative.

Senator Couzens (Rep.), of Michigan, observed:

"The league apparently don't guarantee anything, not even peace."

Man's Death Laid To Hit-Run Driver

County detectives and Wilkinsburg police today began searching for a hit-run motorist who is believed to have fatally injured Wilbur J. An autopsy showed Vogel had died as a result of a crushed chest and internal injuries.

FATHER STANDS BY GIBSON

William R. Gibson, Sr., retired metallurgist of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, is in Crown Point, Ind., today supporting his son, William R. Gibson, Jr., Gary industrial chemist, who yesterday was held for the grand jury on two charges of first degree murder in the slaying of his wife and 7-year-old daughter according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Funeral services for Mrs. Gibson and daughter will be held Friday afternoon at the home of her brother-in-law, William C. Lace, 124 Beverly court, Oklahoma, a suburb of Vandergrift. Interment will be in Apollo Cemetery. Mrs. Gibson's father, William R. Reynolds, and a brother, Alfred J. Reynolds, reside in Vandergrift.

Mrs. Gibson and daughter, Margaret, were found fatally shot in their Gary home early Sunday morning. Mrs. Gibson, as Florence Reynolds, spent her girlhood in the vicinity of Vandergrift.

A brother of the prisoner, Francis E. Gibson, of Monessen, a Westmoreland County health department employe, also attended the hearing yesterday.

Gibson told police he returned home late Saturday night to find his wife and daughter had been shot several times with the family pistol. Prosecutor John Underwood refused to accept the theory of murder and suicide by the wife and mother and held Gibson, who yesterday waived a hearing and was bound over for court trial.

JAPAN MAY TRY SOLDIERS FOR ATTACK

Prospect of Grave Issue Changes Mukden Apathy; Military Chiefs Worried

By EDWARD HUNTER
International News Service.

MUKDEN, Jan. 6.—Japanese military headquarters here, stirred by the firm attitude of the United States in refusing to accept immediately its expression of "regrets" over the Chamberlain incident, today altered its somewhat apathetic position and announced the two sentries accused of beating the American consul might "possibly" be courtmartialed.

A military spokesman informed International News Service that the two sentries would face the military tribunal if sufficient evidence were found in a new investigation of the case.

ATTITUDE CHANGES

Today's attitude of the army headquarters was much different from that which marked its first handling of the case when it was considered "closed" after a brief interview between the American and Japanese consuls here.

The Japanese then expressed their "regrets," later pointing out this was not to be construed as being an "apology" and dismissed a civilian interpreter who was a third man involved in the attack upon Chamberlain. The two sentries were at first detained and then released and restored to duty.

The attitude was changed, however, after receipt of reports from Washington that the affair had grown into a grave and delicate international problem which probably would involve united action against Japan by the United States, Great Britain and France.

Stimson Hints Statement On Far Eastern Policy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—It was indicated in highly authoritative circles today that an important statement of American policy toward the Far East may be made shortly by Secretary Stimson.

The discussions between the Secretary and the French and British ambassadors regarding further joint action in the Far Eastern situation were linked by officials in predicting a statement on the general situation.

Secretary Stimson declined to comment on the visit of the ambassadors.

The State Department has received official dispatches indicating a Japanese campaign beyond Chinchow toward China proper and such action is looked upon with concern.

In discussing the incident at Mukden, Secretary Stimson said he considered the Japanese expression of degrets to be tantamount to an apology by Japan for he attack by three Japanese on American Consul Culver B. Chamberlain.

A company of infantry marched in this evening and took over the Chinese military and naval shore establishments.

ROOSEVELT'S CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED

Governor's Message Seen As Start of Drive; Asks For 'New Leadership'

By RAYMOND I. BORST
International News Service

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 6.—Calling for a new leadership in the nation—"a leadership practical, sound, courageous and alert"—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in his annual message to the 1932 Legislature, virtually launched his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

After he had laid the blame for present economic conditions, which he characterized as the most grave "since the dark days of the 60s," squarely on the doorstep of the Republican administration at Washington, Roosevelt declared:

"The mistakes of the past among men and among nations, the effect of which now beset us, call for leadership broad enough to understand the problems not only of our nation but of their relationship to other nations, the problems not of New York alone, but of all the 47 other states, the problems not of cities alone, but of the small communities and rural districts as well—a leadership practical, sound, courageous and alert."

He asked the Legislature to increase immediately the personal income tax, the present two-cent tax on gasoline, the stock transfer tax, now two cents on each $100 share, and the tax on motor trucks, to offset the state's $150,000,000 deficit. He did not suggest the rate of increase for these taxes but is expected to do so when he transmits his executive budget next week. He wants these taxes boosted February 1.

He asserted:

"Business and industry have been toiling and are toiling to salvage the old structure. They need more than just to be let alone. The public asks that they be given a new leadership which will help them and at the same time give definite recognition to a new balance based on the right of every individual to make a living out of life."

Picturing the economic problems as "national in scope," he declared it is impossible to solve "without a leadership and a plan and action by our national government."

Not once did Roosevelt refer to prohibition.

TARIFF HEARING HELD IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The administration was given a hearing by the House Democrats today on their new-planned tariff measure, as Republicans protested the speed with which it was being put through.

Both State Department and Treasury were asked to send experts to discuss the international economic conference, reciprocal trade agreements and other arrangements which the bill would call for. The items are not in line with Republican tariff policy.

Result of the hearing this afternoon was a delay in getting action on the Democratic tax program which was to have been prepared for the Ways and Means Committee today.

Murderer Keeps His Canaries In Leavenworth

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The bird man of Leavenworth Penitentiary can keep his canaries.

General prohibition of private "businesses" in the prison threatened the avocation of Robert Stroud, twice a murderer. But officials today fitted the rule to the case, permitting him to continue as a hobby-rider unique among all the federal prison population.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Chairman Linthicum, of the non-partisan anti-prohibition group in the House, said today he would appoint a committee within a few days to decide on a bill to support for a vote against prohibition this session. The Maryland Democrat said:

"We will work with the Republican wet group headed by Representative Beck, of Pennsylvania. I have no objection to the Republican organization but it is my desire to combine our efforts in seeking the removal of the dry laws."

Detroit University Head Raps Dry Law

DETROIT, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Asserting that prohibition has not improved the standards of colleges, the Rev. J. P. McNichols, S. J., president of the University of Detroit, said in an address yesterday before the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform:

"College men agree with me there is more serious drinking in colleges today than there was 15 or 20 years ago."

DEMOCRATS ASK BUDGET ACTION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—The Democratic leadership in Congress pledged itself today to a revenue program that will "balance the budget," but decided to await recommendations of the administration before increasing federal taxes.

The Democratic congressional policy committee declared the administration responsible for the $2,000,000,000 deficit in the Treasury and called upon the President's party to propose a method of alleviating it.

A statement issued jointly after the meeting by Speaker Garner, of the House, and Senator Robinson, Democratic leader of the Senate, cited "the rapid increase in the cost of national government" and added:

"It is of primary importance that the budget be balanced promptly. The problem is in large measure the outgrowth of mistakes in policy and extravagance on the part of the Republican administrations. Nevertheless, Democrats in Congress acknowledge the duty to contribute their best efforts to maintain the credit of the United States government, which can be accomplished only by drastic measures."

Former Teacher Held for Murder

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Robert P. Nixon, former Louisville (Ky.) High School teacher and graduate of Denison University, Granville, O., was indicted today for the first degree murder of Peter Stuebben, with whom he worked on a Bedford dairy farm.

Naval Secretary Denies Breach With Hoover

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—A Democratic suggestion that Secretary Adams resign because he is not in accord with President Hoover's naval policies drew a reply today from the Navy department head that he was "absolutely loyal."

Representative McClintic, Oklahoma, reminded the House naval committee that Adams yesterday had approved a bill for construction of $616,250,000 worth of new ships to bring the United States up to the London naval treaty allowance. Then came the resignation mention.

The navy head asked the permission to reply. With a quaver in his voice he said he knew of no difference between what I've testified here and the President's attitude." He added:

"I resent the implication that I'm here in any disloyalty to the President of the United States."

Adams explained he had indorsed the Vinson bill yesterday as a personal preference.

Earlier Admiral Pratt, chief of naval operations, testified that the country's safety might be endangered if a satisfactory naval program is not authorized by congress.

Pinchot Favors Hearst Prosperity Bond Plan

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 6.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, thinks the two major problems confronting the American people today are:

1—"Handling the tremendous situation created by the unemployed."

2—"Getting ready to prevent another such depression as we have now from happening aga'n."

"Over-concentration of wealth," he believes, is chiefly responsible.

He vigorously advocates federal aid for the jobless. He is opposed to a dole, so-called, but he thinks the government should immediately borrow billions of dollars to meet the unemployment crisis. He said the more he thinks of the proposal first advanced by William Randolph Hearst that the national government appropriate $5,000,000,000 to create work relief, the better he thinks of it.

TWO PALS SOUGHT AFTER SLAYERS OF 6 KILL EACH OTHER

THIRD BROTHER HELD AIDE IN MASSACRE

Rangers Join in Texas Hunt For Pair Believed Linked In Murders at Farm House

International News Service.

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 6.—While the bullet-perforated bodies of two of the notorious Young brothers lay in the morgue, the far-flung manhunt growing out of the massacre of six Missouri peace officers today developed into a search for a third brother and another supposed accomplice.

The Southwest's most spectacular killer-chase achieved a sudden and unique climax yesterday afternoon when the brothers, Harry and Jennings Young, standing toe to toe in the bathroom of a beleaguered house, destroyed each other with revolver shots.

It was Harry Young's desire to see his wife that indirectly led to his entrapment. Police detectives learned of his appearance at the home of his mother-in-law here and were instantly on his trail.

This double fratricide closed the most sensational chapter of the manhunt which began last Saturday night at a farmhouse near Springfield, Mo., when Sheriff Marcell Hendrix and five other officers were slaughtered. For it cheated the law of its prescribed vengeance on Harry Young, leader of the murderous gang.

But another chapter was unfolding today whose elements are the search for Paul Young and Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd and the undisclosed mystery of what actually occurred within that Missouri farmhouse while the six besieging officers were meeting death outside.

Authorities still believe that Paul Young was by the side of Harry and Jennings when they poured death through the windows of their mother's farmhouse and made their escape through a concrete tunnel. Pretty Boy, an Oklahoma gunman, who is said to have slain 11 men in his career, was also suspected of aiding the Young brothers in the massacre.

Efforts to locate Paul and "Pretty Boy" were renewed with Texas rangers and other officers guarding the highways and combing the countryside.

Divorcee Says She Meant To Shoot Woman Along With Suitor She Had Lost

International News Service.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 6.—Dry-eyed and defiant, Mrs. Nora Johnson Bonnell, 42, Weston (W. Va.) divorcee, charged with the slaying of Theodore E. McDonald, 44, her common-law husband, today told police she had only one regret—that she had not killed Mrs. Merle Watson, of Weston, who, she claims, supplanted her in McDonald's affections.

Mrs. Bonnell strode into a restaurant here last night, fired one shot into McDonald's back as he sat at a counter beside Mrs. Watson, and then pumped four shots into his prostrate form.

The enraged woman pursued Mrs. Watson to the restaurant kitchen, but the intended victim was saved when she held the door firmly closed against Mrs. Bonnell. Police quoted her as saying:

"I tried to kill myself three times and failed, and so this was the only way out. He got a license to marry me in August, 1930, but kept postponing it because I had 'lung trouble.'"

Nationalists Defy British Ban on Boycott; One Man Killed in Mob Battle

Associated Press.

Nationalist leaders were arrested by the score in India today as the campaign of civil disobedience gained headway and the boycott of British goods began.

Mahatma Gandi sat spinning in his prison at Poona, but at Benares one Nationalist was killed when police fired on a mob, and at Jubbulpore a Nationalist group which had been forbidden to parade squatted in the road and refused to move on. They had been there 24 hours.

Elsewhere shops were picketed and business was at a standstill. The Bombay cotton, bullion and grain exchanges were closed.

Mill owners in Calcutta were asked by the congress committee to cancel orders for $1,500,000 worth of British machinery.

The government tied up the $15,000 congress party treasury funds which had been transferred to the accounts of individual members in Indian banks.

In Bombay a number of women were included among those arrested.

JOBLESS 'ARMY' IN HARRISBURG

truck, left Huntingdon this morning.

A chilling rain soaked many of the priest's "soldiers" to the bones and mired their motley collection of autos deep in the mud of the Huntingdon Fair Grounds, where the main body camped for the night.

For miles along the line of march from Pittsburgh to Huntingdon, stragglers of the army, in groups numbering from five to 500 men, found shelter and aid from a hospitable countryside.

Father Cox's boast that his presence in the line was a guarantee that it "is not a gesture of radicals," apparently has had its effect.

State police accompanying the motorcade today praised the orderliness of its shabby members.

Small hamlets and larger towns along the route, at first hostile to the marchers, were converted.

AIDED BY CHURCHES

Church workers scurried to and fro, gathering food and coffee when they learned that the five-ton provision truck had broken down far in the rear.

Welfare organizations threw open their quarters and pressed all their facilities to the utmost in aiding the marchers.

Despite all this aid, the procession already has felt tribulations. Its members have no money, few cigarets and a minimum of food.

Father Cox was cheered by a telephone message from M. Emilline Pitt, of the Department of Labor, at Washington.

Miss Pitt told the priest that Senator James J. Davis had instructed her to ascertain the exact time of the army's arrival in Washington so she might have food and coffee awaiting it.

CRAMPED QUARTERS

Huntingdon was swamped last night as the men, tired of their sodden beds in the fair grounds, flocked into town. The Huntingdon Community House cared for more than 5,000, the Salvation Army fed an equal number. Scores of others spent the night in the basement of the Fifteenth Street Methodist Episcopal Church and still others gained protection from the rain and cold in the volunteer fire company houses.

Only one casualty was reported in this city. Fatigued from the long ride and hunger, Benjamin Boronwela, 35, of Ganwelli, near California, Pa., collapsed, while entering the fair grounds. He fell to the ground and his head struck a stone. He was taken to the hospital at Huntingdon where he was treated for lacerations.

TRUCKS ON WAY TO PICK UP STRAGGLERS

Aid Sent Jobless Paraders On Plea of Father Cox; 1,000 Stranded on Road

Four huge trucks started for Greensburg this afternoon to pick up the stragglers of Father James R. Cox's army of the unemployed and bring them back to Pittsburgh.

It was estimated 1,000 or more men, unable to find transportation and yet anxious to join the priest in his unemployment relief crusade to Washington, were stranded along the highway.

Thousands of others were tramping the roads beyond Greensburg in a valiant hope of being able to reach the national capital before tomorrow morning, when Father Cox is to present his relief plea.

The trucks were dispatched to Greensburg in answer to an urgent telegraphic plea for the priest to Miss Margaret Harbison, one of his secretaries, asking that the stranded men be given all possible assistance.

TRUCKS SUPPLIED

Cy Siebert, labor leader and one of Father Cox's aides, obtained the trucks from John Benkart & Co., of the North Side, and immediately started the relief expedition.

Father Cox's wire read:

"Try today to send trucks to pick up stragglers. Do as they request. Take them either to Pittsburgh or to Washington. If cannot secure trucks arrange some transportation to Pittsburg. Take care of these men."

Miss Harbison said most of the men on the road were determined to push on to Washington. She said a party from St. Patrick's Church carried sandwiches and coffee to Delmont last night and found the 400 camped there determined to go ahead.

She said that all the towns and farming communities along the route were treating the walkers "marvelously."

Attorney Henry Ellenbogen, one of the priest's aides here, estimated the number of stragglers between 4,000 and 5,000.

HUNDREDS ENCAMPED

Export reported 400 of the stragglers camped there last night; 500 were at Delmont, 200 at New Alexandria and 100 at Ebensburg. Smaller communities, too, opened their churches and other buildings to the marchers and provided them with food.

Footsore and weary, this pedestrian part of Father Cox's army resumed its march this morning. Some of them hitch-hiked, others took to freight trains, while still more plodded wearily along on foot—all bravely determined to reach Washington tomorrow morning.

Despite the hardships of the journey, none of the marchers suffered serious injury. A score were treated at Johnstown hospitals, most of them for foot injuries. Half a dozen men were reported to have been injured in the mountains east of Johnstown.

Harry Smith, 40, of Matthews avenue, Knoxville, and Edward Mock, 53, of 119 Webber street, Mt. Oliver, were struck by an automobile as they entered Johnstown. Smith was believed to have fractured his left leg. Mock was suffering from shock. Both were detained at Mercy Hospital.

ONE EXHAUSTED

John E. Craven, 30, of McKees Rocks, was a patient in the Johnstown Memorial Hospital, suffering from exhaustion. William Edwards, 20, Negro, of 146 Forty-eighth street, suffered from an abdominal complaint.

Chester Craven, of Wheeling, was a patient in Lee Hospital, suffering from injuries when he fell from a truck as it entered Johnstown.

A Johnstown hospital sent an automobile on the highway to give aid to the stragglers. It brought in many of the weary hikers.

A group of 94 was sheltered in the East Pittsburgh Police Station last night. They left early today for Washington. Delmont sheltered and fed 125; New Alexandria, 150; Export, 200, and Blairsville, 150. Many of the stragglers reached the towns late last night.

Three hundred boarded a cattle train at Blairsville en route to Harrisburg.

COUNTY JOINS HALL SITE SUIT

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—The State Supreme Court today permitted the Allegheny County Commissioners to join a group of Oakland residents and the Syria Improvement Association in their fight against erection of a Town Hall on the Nicola site.

Arguments were heard on the appeal of the Oakland group from a decision of the Allegheny County courts dismissing their complaint.

Oliver K. Eaton, representing the appellants, was assisted by Ralph C. Davis and Ralph H. Smith, who appeared in behalf of County Commissioner C. C. McGovern.

William W. Smith and Miles England represented the Schenley Farms Company.

The former Board of Commissioners agreed to purchase the Schenley Farms site. Suit was instituted to nullify the agreement on several grounds, one allegation being that the price was excessive.

TWO FORCE GIRL OUT OF AUTO

Esther Davis, 26, of 68 Ruth street, Carrick, her clothes rain-soaked and dishevled was picked up on Brownsville road, Carrick, by police early today.

She told the policemen that she had gone on an automobile ride with two men, who forced her to leave the machine several miles outside of Carrick.

Police are holding her for investigation by the federal narcotic inspectors, they said.

$100,000 MAIL POUCH MISSING

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Postal inspectors today were checking the disappearance of a registered mail pouch containing $100,000 in cash, checks and merchandise between Lowell and Boston. The pouch dropped from sight on December 31.

The contents of the pouch were being sent from the Union-Old Lowell National Bank at Lowell to the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston.

A bank employe, according to authorities, took the pouch from the bank to the Lowell Postoffice. From there it was taken by a truckman to the Boston and Maine Railroad to be placed aboard a mail car.

There the trail ended. James E. Donovan, railway mail clerk, told inspectors he did not receive the pouch. Inspectors were working on the theory that the pouch may have been snatched from the truck or from the baggage room.

PAIR BELIEVED WITH JOB ARMY

Somewhere between Pittsburgh and Washington a runaway boy and girl were believed to be marching with Father Cox's unemployment parade, according to Pittsburgh police.

James Huston, 15, and Rabena Travers, 19, both of 6424 Penn avenue, disappeared from their home early today. Huston's parents told police. The boy left a note saying:

"We are going to join Father Cox's army and march to Washington."

Miss Travers, according to police, had lived with the Huston family three weeks.

DEMOCRAT WINS CONGRESS SEAT

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—William N. Rogers, of Wakefield, anti-dry Democrat, today stood as the choice of the First New Hampshire Congressional District, nominally Republican and represented by a dry since 1925.

He is the first Democrat to represent the state in Congress in 10 years and was the last of his party to serve in the National House. His election gives the Democrats 220 seats in the House, as against 214 for the Republicans.

Former Gov. John H. Bartlett, Rogers' Republican opponent for the seat made vacant by the death of Fletcher Hale, of Laconia, received 24,505 votes to Rogers' 27,453 at yesterday's special election.

Republicans and Democrats alike saw in Bartlett's defeat a rebuff to the administration.

THE RECEPTION IN THE BASEBALL STADIUM AT JOHNSTOWN FOR ADVANCE GUARD OF JOBLESS MARCH ON WASHINGTON

Lenz Happy Over Gains Though Facing Defeat

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Sidney S. Lenz was happier today, on the verge of apparently certain defeat, than for some time. For the rubbers in which Commander Winfield Liggett, Jr., has sat opposite him in place of Oswald Jacoby, resigned, the plus of Lenz's side in the contract bridge match was 2,665, with 13 rubbers left to play.

Eight more rubbers last night, of which Lenz and Liggett won six, only intensified the general expectation of neutrals that Ely Culbertson will win handily. The match ends Friday night. There will be no session tonight. Howard Schenken will be Culbertson's partner tomorrow night. Michael Gottlieb played last night.

The Culbertson plus was reduced last night by 2,660 to 14,175. The rubbers won became 75 for Culbertson and 64 for Lenz, the total points, 116,320 and 102,145 respectively.

Schooley Jury Links Politicians able to have the penalty and interest or part thereof remitted.

JURY LISTS NAMES

Among the names were Henry Townsend, former Twenty-fifth Ward political leader; Max Engel, real estate dealer; Keller, Blair & Sons, heavy debtors to the defunct Franklin Savings and Trust Company; Morris B. Dilworth, the Nicola Land Company; Morris G. Levy, John and Daniel O'Connell, and Edward Caswell.

All of the payments were made in 1930 or 1931 and were for city taxes dating from 1926 on. The receipts in most cases where penalties and interest were involved were initialed R. D. S. and in a few cases O. K. B.

These markings were interpreted as the initials of former City Treasurer Schooley and his chief investigator, Burgoyne, those indicted yesterday. Many of the taxpayers named in the exhibit were witnesses before the grand jury.

LOSS TO CITY CITED

In this manner the city lost $8,500 in 1930 and 1931, the grand jury says. It found, though the partial audit of the treasury and delinquent tax offices. A complete audit of this phase has not been completed and a thorough report is not possible at this time, the jury set forth in its presentment.

Meanwhile, county detectives were serving 59 subpenas on prospective witnesses at the trial of Mayor Charles H. Kline, charged with malfeasance in office, scheduled to start January 19.

Several surprise witnesses are reported to have been subpenaed yesterday before the date of the trial was made public to insure that they would not evade service. The remainder of the witnesses will be virtually those who appeared before the grand jury last June, it is understood.

GIRTS IDENTIFIED

When inquiry was made at the office of District Attorney Park as to the identity of Girts, named for the Schooley presentment, it was stated that he was secretary and treasurer of the Schenley Farms Company and the Nicola Realty Company, treasurer of the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, Schenley Apartments Company, Schenley Hotel Company and the Bellefield Company.

In making its presentment to Judge James H. Gray shortly before 6 o'clock last night, the grand jury investigating Schooley found that unlawful practices were of a varied nature and fell generally into the following classifications:

1—Failure and neglect to secure and obtain from various banking institutions in which city funds were deposited, a surety bond as required by ordinance.

2—Depositing funds of the school district in banking institutions other than those designated by the school board.

3—Personal use of moneys collected as delinquent tax collector.

4—Lending of money collected as delinquent taxes to various individuals by Schooley.

5—Issuing of tax receipts upon receipt of checks from various individuals when it was known there were not sufficient funds in the bank to meet the checks, and holding them for a long period of time.

6—Unlawful remission of penalties and interest due the city upon taxes which had become delinquent.

The grand jury then discussed these matters in a 15-page typewritten document.

BONDS LACKING

The jurors said they found that Schooley had failed to obtain surety bonds or security bonds from the Franklin Savings and Trust Company (where there was $290,000 of city and delinquent taxes on deposit) and the Bloomfield Trust Company.

The jury also found that Schooley deposited school money in the Franklin Savings and Trust Company, the Garfield Bank and the Bloomfield Trust Company, the Board of Public Education, of which board Schooley was the treasurer, not having selected or designated these banks as depositories.

It also was charged that in February, 1930, and in September, 1931, Schooley converted to his own use various sums received by him as collector of delinquent taxes, amounting to $16,800, which sums were retained by him, but that he later had repaid the sums from the fund from which they were taken.

HOCKEY LOANS

The jury also charged Schooley, beginning in February, 1931, and August, 1931, with making loans to the Pittsburgh Hockey Club and the Fort Pitt Hockey Club amounting to $1,860, these loans having been made by depositing in the said fund a check signed by the Pittsburgh Hockey Club or the Fort Pitt Hockey Club, which checks were carried as cash, but later repaid.

The jury also found that various individuals were advanced money as loans on undated checks or post-dated checks, which were nothing more than I. O. U's. Thirteen such loans, aggregating $1,265, were made to one individual, while various smaller sums were loaned to other individuals.

The presentment also cited numerous instances where delinquent tax receipts were issued on checks, some of which were never made good, one, in particular, amounting to $1,210 being still unpaid. No names were mentioned in these particular instances, except in the case of LaSalle Girts. The checks of three corporations of which Girts is treasurer issued in payment of delinquent taxes amounted to more than $60,000. The jury found that the checks were placed with cash, and no record of them made in the cash record of the delinquent tax office.

INTEREST REMITTED

Regarding Burgoyne, the jury recommended that he be indicted for misdemeanor in office. The jury charged that having custody and control of certain Liberty bonds and other securities deposited by the Franklin Savings and Trust Company to secure the deposits of the city funds, Burgoyne, without authority in law, returned them to the Franklin Savings and Trust Company, and asked that he be indicted for embezzlement and for fraudulent conversion.

When the Franklin Savings and Trust Company was reported in difficulties, Controller James P. Kerr sought information as to whether the city deposits in that bank were properly protected by surety of corporate bonds.

After repeated efforts, one day Burgoyne came to the office door of Controller Kerr and remarked:

"The butter is in the cooler."

Liberty bonds for $125,000 were shown Dr. Kerr for the $125,000 city funds deposited in that bank, aside from delinquent taxes and school funds. What became of the bonds has not been explained, and where Burgoyne got them remains a mystery.

Ex-Bradford Mayor Resents Drew Snub

BRADFORD, Pa., Jan. 6. — Spencer M. Degolier, who retired as Mayor of Bradford Monday, after serving four terms in the office, last night made public his refusal to attend a complimentary banquet to the retiring city officials, giving as his reason the failure of the banquet committee to invite Webster G. Drew, City Treasurer, removed from office last September by the City Council for alleged mishandling of funds.

Hoover Gets Clock In Ornate Case From Admirer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. — (AP.)—Presidents receive many unusual gifts, but President Hoover got one that was just a little different.

It was an electric clock, encased in an elaborate mahogany frame, nearly three feet high. J. L. Fisher, of Waynesboro, Va., carved the case by hand. It had a likeness of the statue of liberty on its top, a tinkling liberty bell in a carved hollow, and beneath, cut into the wood was the slogan "Time Tells the Story."

Along the base of the frame was carved in larger letters "Herbert C. Hoover, January 1, 1932."

4-PARTY RAIL MERGER ASKED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Faced with opposition, powerful railroad interests today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to amend its original consolidation plan so eastern railroads may be grouped into four major systems instead of the five-party plan suggested by the commission.

These systems would be known as the Chesapeake and Ohio-Nickel Plate, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania. To each would be allocated strategic roads in the territory involved. The groupings, if finally approved, would constitute the most gigantic road consolidation in the nation's history, constituting 53,000 miles of line, with an investment in road and equipment approximating $9,800,000,000.

The chief opposition so far developed to the four-party plan revolves around the Monon, which is to be allocated to the Baltimore and Ohio under that plan. This opposition comes from southern commercial organizations and the four railroad brotherhoods.

Evkenstein Is Placed On Game Commission

HARRISBURG, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Appointment of Ralph L. Evkenstein, Williamsport, to the Board of Game Commissioners to succeed J. August Beck, also of Williamsport, resigned, was announced today by Gov. Pinchot.

Beck resigned recently with four other commissioners as a protest, they said, against the Governor's permission of the introduction of "political activities" into the affairs of the commission.

Judge, Gang Foe, Destroys Weapons

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Judge Francis Borelli, who sometimes goes sleuthing disguised as a gangster, has taken a lake trip in furtherance of his war on crime.

As a result nearly 200 shotguns, revolvers and pistols, some of them formerly owned by famous police characters, were lying at the bottom of Lake Michigan where they were dumped yesterday while the judge looked on with satisfaction.

KING TO POOR FOR HUNTING

By RANDOLPH CHURCHILL
Universal Service Special Cable

LONDON, Jan. 6.—King George V, who has slashed his household purse by about $250,000 a year, has had to cut down his game shooting at Sandringham and Windsor to balance his budget.

The King today is accounted one of the four best game shots in Britain, and is sacrificing the sport nearest his heart.

King George raises pheasants from eggs sent to his estates from the most expensive hatcheries in England and France, but next season he will content himself with game raised from the eggs gathered on his own estates.

This means an equerry said that the King will gradually eliminate pheasants from the royal hunting preserves, where only the sturdier partridge can thrive without expert rearing.

MINE CHIEF, 77, DENIES KILLING

MT. STERLING, Ky., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—With more than 100 defense witnesses waiting to aid him, William Hightower today resumed his testimony which he hoped would clear him of charges he counselled murder to win a coal mine strike in Harlan County.

Opening his testimony in Montgomery Circuit Court yesterday, the 71-year-old defendant entered a general denial of the commonwealth's charges, developed by 79 witnesses. The gun battle at Evarts last May between deputy sheriffs and miners, in which four men were killed, occurred while he was in Harlan, he testified.

Meanwhile, back in the southeastern Kentucky coal fields, six women and three men were in the Bell County Jail awaiting preliminary hearing on criminal syndicalism charges. They were arrested in raids on the National Miners' Union headquarters. Approximately 1,500 miners and sympathizers marched in Pineville yesterday in protest against the arrests, but there was no disorder.

KIDNAPER LURES GIRL WITH DIME

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—A shiny 10-cent piece proffered by a smiling stranger lured 6-year-old Mercedes Christopher to forsake her playmates and fall into the hands of a maniac last night, who attacked her and then tossed the frightened child from his automobile, police revealed today. The little girl was found wandering in a daze a few hours later and was given medical attention at the Hahnemann Hospital.

The story of the kidnaping was recited by the little girl's companions. A license number they gave is being traced by police.

The kidnaper was described by the children as being a tall, dark man, with a sharply pointed waxed mustache.

MUSIC

PROGRAM

Sonata in D Major.....Vivaldi
Sonata in G Minor..... Bach
La Folia.....Corelli
Prelude and Allegro.....Pugnani
Melodie ..... Gluck
Tarentella .....Szymanowski
Chant de Roxane...Szymanowski
Variations and Polonaise...Weber

Nathan Milstein, a new favorite among violinists, entertained a fair-sized audience last night in Syria Mosque. This is Milstein's third appearance in successive years, and with each concert his art is ripening fast. We shall do well to watch him and invite him to return often, for he has not reached his zenith, but he is made of such artistic stuff as has made Kreisler the eminent classicist these past decades.

Mr. Lissfelt

Milstein chose his program from the most serious classics; it was less spontaneous music than heard last year, but eventually his audience became aware of the repose in this young player and responded as he deserved.

Two works of Szymanowski were new to us: the Tarentella, a stunt piece overflowing with shuddering chromatics, but not much music, the Chant de Roxane, a more delicately spun melody. The revived Weber was a reminder that it was this composer who resuscitated the Polonaise as a concert piece.

In Corelli's La Folia Variations Milstein displayed completely the scale of his tone as well as his emotions; in the cadenza he spoke as only the inspired artist. His flute-like tone in Gluck's well known air from Orpheus was re-echoed in Schumann's Traumerei, given as encore, and heard for the first time in a generation in these halls. A Bach Bourree for unaccompanied violin came with Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Flight of the Bee" as further encores.

Emanuel Bey is so good an accompanist that it was pitiful he should so far repress his tone as to make it almost negligible.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Ann Harding Confesses She Expects Studio Stories To End Her Career

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, by King Features Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6.

That Havana vacation doesn't seem to have cheered Ann Harding up.

Caught in a gloomy mood this week, she confessed she expects to be finished in pictures in two years. Her only hope is in the keen story sense of David Selznick, new boss at Radio.

Ann has had an unhappy experience in the trick wording of contracts. She thought her new agreement gave her the right to turn down a story and take a voluntary suspension in salary. Instead, she says, the studio has the right to suspend her if she refuses to make pictures of their selection.

Ann Harding in "Westward Passage." She isn't very happy over it, but doesn't intend to make trouble.

Ann is scheduled to star next in "Westward Passage." She isn't very happy over it, but doesn't intend to make trouble.

WANTED—A RIVER

They'll have to remain nameless, but a certain production official called an associate this week about the title of a picture.

"What do you say we call it 'Thundering River'?" he suggested.

"All right," agreed the associate.

"Well, you don't sound enthusiastic? What's the matter?"

"Nothing," said the associate, "only it just happens there is no river in the picture."

GOSSIP

Well, the first of the leap year proposals is here. A girl in East Peoria has written a proposal of marriage to Gary Cooper. Unfortunately, he is sailing up the Nile, or thereabouts . . . Mary Astor is finishing up at Radio. She says she may do a local play. In the meantime she is sponsoring a New York dance team, Claire Lea and Richard Stuart . . . The local John McCormack concert has been postponed until January 29 . . . U. S. C. football player, Bob Hall, stands a good chance of being made a Paramount Stock Company actor. He was in "Touchdown" . . . George Hill has bought a small snow-plough to clear the road into his mountain cabin. December saw record snowfall on California peaks . . . Seen around: Charlie Murray, in a green suit, standing before a downtown shop window, which featured women's sport clothes . . . John P. Medbury, alone, occupying one of the big booths at the Brown Derby and getting no hard looks for it . . . Two Fox scenarists reading an inscription on the fountain at the head of "Writer's Row." It reads: "One picture is worth 10,000 words."

NEW ASSIGNMENTS

Now that the holidays are over, Hollywood is settling down to work. Karen Morley and Robert Young have been handed parts in "Are You Listening?" J. P. McEvoy's radio mystery story, which is one of the first 1932 productions at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Young, in case you don't place him, is the chap who gave such a fine performance with Helen Hayes in "The Sin of Madelon Claudet." Robert Montgomery and Madge Evans have the romantic leads in "Are You Listening?"

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

This is matineeless Wednesday in the Alvin, where they have a play so long that it couldn't be played twice in one day. You wouldn't have to be told that is "Strange Interlude," would you? All right then, it is "Strange Interlude." It begins at 5:45, but you'd better get there at 5:30 or 5:35, since everybody can't arrive at 5:43 and be in their seats at curtain time, as a lot of 'em weren't on the opening night. Grr-r-r-r-r-r!

Small Timer says this is an age of rapidity in which a lot of people even go to the hereafter at a speed of 80 miles per.

Charles Winninger and Ada-May, who has been able to become known favorably without mentioning her last name, will be other smilers. Seats tomorrow.

This Town of Ours

Garbo's masculine-looking girl protector in New York is "Teddy" de Bernard—a fencing champ! . . . Ramon Novarro, who Wasn't Acting in Their Newest Moom-Pitcher, at all!—now has Russ Columbo in his hair—GG sending Russ a mess of pashograms . . . "Don't misonderstend, cuss we unly goot frands" . . . Oh, sure! . . . Billie Dove's arm-in-arming at the Mayfair with her current honey-boy, Chas. Lederer (L. Milestone's ass't), is supposed to have irked the old heart—Howard Hughes-don't-say? . . . Violet Heming (the ex-Mrs. Grant Mills) and Chas. Campbell, of "Church Mouse," are rehearsing to go Hitch-Hiking down an altar soon . . . The Harold (ex-Theater Guild) Moffats (Sylvia Field of the playshops) anticipate their Blessed Event in April . . . Doug Fairbanks, Jr., says if Mussolini gets paid for newspaper stories, why shouldn't he? . . . Perhaps because Mussolini has a better ghost-writer . . . Added to Our Long List by H. B.: "May all your children become acrobats—and dangle from ropes!"

Toscanini hasn't neuritis at all . . . He told Mussolini where to get off, you recall, when they wanted him to play the Fascist Nat'l Anth . . . Well, Tosc took a run-out powder on C. Mackay's Philharmonic because Anna Case (Clarence's Squaw) felt "The Star Spangled Banner" coming on again, and Tosc no juggle his baton for anybody's anthems! . . . Paramount has clinched "Cynara," giving all rivals the headache . . . Wonder why Lita Grey Chaplin deserted "The Little Racketeers," due to open at the Majestic in B'klyn tonight? . . . Swelegant score in it by Dimitri Tiomkin (La Rasch's husband) . . . You now can get 6 and 7-room-with-3-baths apts on Park Ave. until October for $100 per month, but not on lease.

Sinclair Lewis' next novel will be The Story of the Modern Woman—and how modern! . . . One of America's greatest poloists has been clipped so hard by Wall Strasse, he is peddling his Sands Point shack and his horses and probably will retire from polo . . . Tiffany Thayer, whose latest, "The Greek," is a best seller, bought a costly car which features a showfur who dresses better than he does . . . The bottom has toppled out of the Hollywood manuscript market . . . $5,000 is considered pretty good now with 25 Gs being tops . . . A year ago 100 Gs was rated small coin . . .

What happened was this: Ina had asked Gilbert to dine here with her on Xmas . . . Lupe reconciled with John and then tore up his tickets, so Ina felt rotten because she had sent out the invites—hence that wild rumor . . . F. Ziegfeld, who puts on shows, was wished a Happy New Year by every femme at the Mayfair . . . Of course! . . . Margaret Fishback, who is Marne in that nickel mag, has a new book of verse, due in Feb'y, aptly christened: "I Feel Better Now" . . . Another good tag is "Merrily I Go to Hell," by Lady Mary Cameron, who is Dorothy Fletcher, of the Fox Lot and ex-Theater Guilder . . . Chas. Andress, ex-magician, of Great Bend, Kan., who is 82, and his 27-yr-old wife were divorced recently.

What ice cream concern delivers more Laughing Soup than anything else? . . . Libby Holman will shelve us all in 6 wks to join her French heart in Paree . . . The Judith Wood-Franchot Tone romance is now being Long-Distance-phoned . . . J. McDermott, the playwright, conducts the movie colony's only Nude Cult . . . As suggested here, Roger Wolfe Kahn (Otto's youngster) has finally had his office windows cleaned, an Irving Place window cleaning firm getting the regular job, which shows you how much this col'm does to help get people work . . . Incidentally, the Gilbert Kahns (she's of the Whelan Tribe) will be officially dissolved any day now.

A scallion to Mr. Anthony, of the best of the new humorags, for the very amusing cover showing the urchin sticking out his tongue at the dowager in her car, with the dowager returning the salute in the gallery manner—because an obscure artist had submitted the same idea months before . . . A scallion to Mr. Ross, of the Nyaukur for the clever drawing showing a kid offering to mind a rich man's car (while footmen were guarding it), because it appeared long before that in a Columbia Jester . . . An orchid to the Embassy Theater for the most exciting newsreel shots in a spell (Hearst Metrotone), most appealing being the Punch and Judy audience of tots . . . And a forest full of scallions to Nita Naldi for letting herself put on all that tonnage.

Eugene Meyer, Jr., who is governor of the Federal Reserve Board, will soon be chairman of Mr. Hoover's new Emergency Reconstruction Commission now being created by Congress with a capitalization of two billion smackeroos . . . The Republican will hold both jobs, which will invite a political war . . . Commissioner Wm. F. Deegan now has all the jobs Grover Whalen had, for that matter . . . The waiters at Reuben's averaged $75 each in tips on the holiday eve'g . . . What colyumist "spoiled" an otherwise mannerly night at the Casino by trying to murder a bum who annoyed everybody else's women? . . . The Doelgers (Edna Leedom) are definitely done this time.

It's a boy over at the Frederick Martins . . . The desperate hotel and restaurant men here will make a last stand with Hoover, . . . If he doesn't close up every speak at once they will violate the law, too, to keep from being dispossessed . . . The strongest and most strapping tabloidare-devils now tote cannon . . . Lindy never stops at the hotel named for him at Miami Beach . . . Is Swanson bent a little and will M. Farmer, the husband, inherit a million from his former "heart," who is so old? . . . Frances Maddux, who penned a poem for Belgium in '14, rec'd a note of acknowledgment from King Albert last wk! . . . The Newark (O.) Advocate reports that a Walter Winchell was arrested there last wk for chicken thefts . . . Ah, those Winchells! . . . Local politicians will burn to learn that a Columbia professor will be appointed to the Transit Commission!

Daddy Browning's Rolls-Rerce, which he never owned, is now rented by what divorce attorney? . . . The 1931 Class of Renotables are all living at that 59th St. hotel . . . What girl is worrying Primo Carnera? . . . "Two Kinds of Women," the forthcoming flicker, will glorify the colyumist racket . . . August Hecksher's will, recently revised, will give only $25,000 each to his heirs . . . Your Uncle Samuel is readying to change the address of two shady stock promoters to Atlanta—and it's about time! . . . The gorgeous-but-numb types are now called "Beautifools."

ALL IN A DAY

By MARK HELLINGER

A FEW WEEKS AGO, in a mid-western city, a telegram was intercepted by a narcotic agent. He wired back to New York and explained in code that a certain dealer in dope was evidently registered at the C——— Hotel under the name of Davis in Room 401. The telegram was handed to Fred, another narcotic agent, and the case assigned to him. He read the message carefully, noted the room number and was soon on his way to the hotel.

A short while later Fred was knocking softly at the door of Mr. Davis' room.

"Who is it?" came a voice from within.

"Telegram for you, sir," was Fred's response.

The door was opened. The agent immediately went into action. He kicked the door straight back, leaped into the room and jammed his gun into the man's stomach.

"Stick 'em up!" he commanded. "I'm from the narcotic squad. You might as well come clean without any fuss. Where's the stuff?"

The prisoner shrugged his shoulders.

"All right," he said. "You got me. You'll find the layout in that top drawer over there. No use of me trying to fight. I'm cooked."

Fred pocketed his gun.

"You're a wise baby," he cried. "Put on your coat and we'll run down to my office together."

As his prisoner was getting ready, Fred gathered the evidence. He found a small can of opium and two complete outfits. He searched the room completely. And as he did so, his prisoner spoke.

"You know," he mused calmly, "this is a mighty tough break for me."

"Yeah?" murmured Fred. "Why?"

And then the prisoner unfolded his story. He had served a prison term of 20 years and had only been released some eight months previous. He had been an addict before his arrest, he told Fred, and had gone back to the stuff again as soon as he was released.

"That's pretty tough, all right," said the hard-boiled Fred. "I'm all set now. Let's go."

Fred took his prisoner to the main office of the narcotic bureau for further questioning. They arrived there in 45 minutes, and on the way up in the elevator the dope addict turned to Fred.

"Will you tell me something?" he inquired.

"Maybe," replied Fred. "What is it?"

"How," asked the prisoner, "did you know that I was registered in room 400? Where did the tip come from?"

"Wait a minute," said Fred. "What room did you say you were in?"

"Room 400," was the reply.

Fred fished out the original telegram. There was no doubt about it. The wire said that a man named Davis had registered in room 401. Yet this man—

Fred rushed his prisoner into the keeping of another agent, and returned to the hotel as fast as he was able. At the desk Fred inquired if a man named Davis had occupied room 401.

"Yes," returned the clerk. "But you just missed him. He checked out about 15 minutes ago and left no forwarding address."

Only then did Fred realize what had happened. The man he wanted had escaped. He had entered the wrong room. And the man he had arrested would probably have to go back to jail for a long stretch because of a mere coincidence. . .

IT SOUNDS like an old baby, but it amused me when George Olsen told it the other night. It concerns the smartest lion in the African jungle—and a New Yorker named Ginsberg who happened to be in Africa and was known as quite a hunter. It was only natural, then, that Ginsberg should go hunting this wisest of lions.

For days he hunted and hunted the smart beast. Finally he saw it. He fired several shots, but he was too nervous to register a direct hit.

Ginsberg was furious with himself. He returned to his tent and began to practise with his gun. He knew that, to kill this lion, he would have to be precise. So he practised, short, snappy shots.

For days he kept trying those short, snappy shots. At last he felt that he was ready. Once again he trailed that wise lion. For two weeks he crawled around in that jungle. And one day, peering through some foliage, he saw the object of his search.

Ginsberg's eyes almost popped from his head. For the lion was practising short, snappy jumps! . . .

AND SO, reports an annonymous contributor, the ambitious young writer wrote to the hard boiled city editor and asked for advise.

"Enclosed find some of my writings," he penned. "Remember, please, that I am only a struggling young writer. What would you advise me to do?"

Two days later came the editor's response.

"I have read your material," it stated. "I would advise you to stop struggling." . . .

ON AMSTERDAM avenue, in the Sixties, two butcher shops are located almost side by side. For several years the proprietors managed to get along fairly well. But recently, something caused them to break their friendship. And the result has been a price-cutting contest that is the joy of the neighborhood.

During the early part of last week, one of the butchers was seized with a brilliant idea. He visited a local booking agent and hired a colored orchestra to play in his store. After each number, a barker stood in front of the shop and displayed a chicken or a turkey or a piece of beef.

"Right this way, folks," he cried. "Hear the Four Rhythm Maniacs play your favorite tune and buy this excellent meat at the lowest prices in town. Right this way."

It didn't take the rival butcher very long to get wise to the fact that he also needed an attraction to compete with this new idea. So he went his rival one better. In addition to a small orchestra, he hired a pair of colored hoofers who danced between numbers. He also employed a barker with the shrillest voice you ever heard.

"This is your store, my friends," he shouted. "Not only the best meats at the lowest prices, but the best and most complete entertainment to go with it. Come right in and bring your friends."

I heard the yarn the other afternoon when I met a colored fiddler whom I hadn't seen since old Village days. I asked him what he was doing.

"Nothing right now," was his reply, "but I'm booked in for the first of next week in Jones' butcher shop."

Light up . . . Convince Yourself that Chesterfields Satisfy

FLIP OPEN a pack of Chesterfields! Help yourself to a cigarette...Light up...and let's get the facts.

Mister...you're dead right. They're milder! And when the cool, fresh Chesterfield smoke hits the taste-spot...there's no question about it...they do taste better!

It's no secret in tobacco circles that Chesterfield buys the finest tobaccos that grow...Turkish and Domestic...sun-ripened, mellow, pure!

Chesterfields are blended first...then cross-blended ...to make them milder...and milder still! There's no mistaking that rare balance of flavor built up by Cross-Blending. You enjoy it in every fragrant puff!

Even the cigarette paper is different. Cleaner, whiter, tasteless...the purest that money can buy.

Listen, smokers...this is straight. You can't put taste in a cigarette...unless quality goes in, too.

You can taste the goodness in Chesterfields... actually tell the difference. But light up... and convince yourself.

● Pass your verdict on Chesterfield's Radio Program, too! Nat Shilkret's 35-piece Orchestra with Alex Gray, soloist, are on the Columbia Network every night except Sunday, at 10:30 E. S. T.

THEY'RE MILDER • • THEY'RE PURE • • THEY TASTE BETTER • • They Satisfy

"Blood Will Tell"

No Charge for Consultation or Advice . . . Keep Well!

But After a BLOOD Test—What?

That's the question that should interest every sufferer. The microscope tells a truthful story — the Laboratory tests are a matter of science — but what of THE TREATMENT? How soon can HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE be lowered to normal? Can the terrible pain of stomach troubles be relieved? Will the treatment stop the rheumatic pains racking the muscles, and will the nerve-breaking insomnia yield? Will unsightly skin ailments disappear under treatment? Can the workingman and his family afford these treatments? All these questions find happy answers in the Health Service offered by this Institute.

Symptoms of a faulty blood stream we are successfully correcting: Anemia, Rheumatism, Kidney Trouble, High Blood Pressure, Neuritis, Nervous Disorders, Skin Disorders—Psoriasis, Eczema, Acne, Impure Blood—Stomach Troubles. Over 35,000 patients successfully treated at this Laboratory.

Radio Editor

ALL YELLOW JACKET hockey games at home will be broadcast over WWSW beginning with the Windsor tilt tomorrow night, it was announced today by Joe Sartory, station manager . . . Additional microphones will pick up cheers and jeers of the crowd . . . With the Yellow Jackets in there this season with a flashy team, these broadcasts should be not only exciting but realistic . . . Mr. Keough has been engaged to report all the games . . . The broadcasts will be sponsored by the Globe Furnishing Company.

Question a Day:

Walter Winchell, whose column appears daily in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, is plenty good spilling th news about others, but never says anything about himself, complain several of our readers who have asked us to please diignose his case.

Walter was born in New York in 1897, and, as he says himself, "no rag went into an extra edition over the event."

He left public school when he was 13 to join the "Imperial Trio" of singing ushers. The trio wasn't famous then, even had a hard time holding down their job of keeping the aisles clear, collecting late tickets and singing popular "chunes" between acts, but today they are recognized as three outstanding successes in the radio and theatrical world. Eddie Cantor was the lead, George Jessel sang bass and Winchell was the tenor. Winchell was spelled with only one "l" then, but a printer changed all that and Walter has tagged along with the extra "l" ever since.

Winchell's first job as a reporter brought him $25 a week. His column in the Daily Mirror, New York, now pays him $25,000 a year alone and his income from broadcasting is said to add another $150,000 a year, believe it or not!

Winchell goes to work at five in the afternoon, prepares his column for the next yawning and treks along Broadway for more news. He goes to bed about seven o'clock in the morning.

Winchell is married to June Aster and they have two girls—Gloria and Waida.

He still wears the same size hat and Pittsburgh claims a large share of his witty correspondence and telegrams. In fact his secretary is a graduate of Carnegie Tech.

Studio Lights:

A report seeps through that Jan Garber's orchestra has dissolved. . . .

How women may avoid quarrels with their husbands at the bridge table is to be Mrs. Ely Culbertson's advice on WCAE at 10 o'clock tonight. . . .

More about those 97 clocks in NBC studios. . . . Alfred W. Christopher, of Bay Ridge, N. Y., is paid a handsome salary just to see that the time never varies with that of the Naval Observatory clock in Arlington. . . . Alfred has become a time robot, and when he orders his eggs boiled three minutes in the morning 'tis said he can tell if they're done a second over. . . .

The last act of Wagner's Lohengrin," with Maria Mueller as "Elsa," is an NBC treat for WCAE fans this Saturday afternoon at 4:15. . . .

Again, a new schedule for Eddie Cantor — January 10 he is to broadcast from Cleveland; January 17, Cantor and George Jessel from Chicago; January 24 and 31, Cantor from New York. February 7 and the next three Sundays, Jessel on alone.

Ben Bernie, Jack Denny, Don Bestor, Jimmy Joy and Duke Ellington send letters of thanks to the Sun-Telegraph readers for picking them on the All-America Radio Orchestra team . . .

Phil Cook's musical comedy, "Radio Personalities," is to open on Broadway, Monday, January 18, with several radio celebs in the cast . . . it is described as a variety show with a thread of a plot . . .

Arthur Tracy, the Street Singer, has been laid low with a cold . . . due back on the air Friday . . .

Although his Saturday night and late broadcasts have been eliminated, Lowell Thomas is to draw the same pay from his sponsor.

Mark Shields, Sun-Telegraph political analyst, is to speak on "Politics and Unemployment" over WCAE tomorrow night at 6:30. . .

QUARREL LEADS TO SHOOTING

PENNSBURG, Pa., Jan. 6.—(INS.)—A family quarrel over a baby's clothes was blamed today for the suicide of a farmer and the serious shooting of a state trooper by the enraged man before he turned the gun on himself.

The dead man, Samuel B. Myers, 58, barricaded himself in his home when two state troopers went to arrest him on a charge of assault and battery preferred by his son, Ray Myers, 25.

The troopers, Kelton H. Greenweed and Harry Christ, 25, of Wilkes-Barre, sought to effect the capture of the farmer, but he opened fire on them with a shotgun, wounding Christ in the chest. Then Myers turned the shotgun on himself.

Young Myers said he and his father quarreled when the older man objected to the scanty clothing worn by Ray's infant at the breakfast table.

Fight Lost to Ban Religion in Schools

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The state's highest court, by an adverse decision, yesterday ended the fight of Joseph Lewis to bar religion from the public schools of New York City.

Lewis, a taxpayer, carried his fight into the Court of Appeals on the ground that the city had no legal right to spend money for the purchase of Bibles and hymnbooks.

1932 Proves Unlucky For Chicago Man

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—William McDonald, of Chicago, thinks he has had his share of bad luck for 1932.

He came to Canada for a holiday. During his stay an accident wrecked his car and killed a woman; he was arrested for criminal negligence, and then learned his bank at home had closed and he couldn't get $20,000 he had deposited. He is now behind bars trying to raise $5,000.

Service Shop Benefit Being Held Tomorrow

It is somewhat unusual to find the beneficiary of an enterprise financing that enterprise, but such is the case with the bundle luncheon which is being given tomorrow at the Hotel Schenley for the benefit of the Service Shop conducted by the Council of Jewish Women. The Shop has underwritten the luncheon expenses and the entire price of admission will be the bundle which each guest will bring. Only members of the Council have been invited and even the musicians will be members. They are Madeline Kahn Lewis, vocalist, and her accompanist, Mrs. A. L. Balter. Reservations will be accepted until tomorrow morning.

LECTURE RECITAL GIVEN FOR MUSIC CLUB

J. Fred Lissfelt Discusses 'Women In Music' and Henry Harris Illustrates at Piano

Those members of the Tuesday Musical Club who were not in Upper Memorial Hall yesterday missed one of the finest programs of this and many other seasons. The club has had few lecture recitals in its history and it's rather a pity, providing, of course, that they might always be of the caliber of yesterday's as given by J. Fred Lissfelt and Henry Harris.

Mr. Lissfelt, music critic of the Sun-Telegraph, spoke on "Women in Music," an impressive, dignified talk that brought out much of the human side of the great feminine figures in the world of music. It was given with a quiet sense of dramatic value and a nice appreciation of fundamentals. Mr. Lissfelt began with Sapho, since poetry was music in her day, then went on through the years telling of the influence of Eleanore of Aquitaine, Faustina Bordone, George Sand, Countess Patocka and the wives of Bach, Haydn, Mozart, Schumann, Mendelssohn and Wagner.

At appropriate intervals, Mr. Harris illustrated with compositions of Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Schumann and Brahms, closing with the ineffably beautiful "Love Death" from "Tristan and Isolde." All of these he played with his usual brilliance, warmth and a perfection of technique which need only life and living to ripen.

Events listed for the month by the Woman's City Club are the contract bridge class, a drama tea, a library luncheon, a Sunday musicale, a French luncheon and the children's matinee, the last of which is, of course, at the Nixon Theater. The play this time is "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" and will be presented the morning of the thirtieth.

City Club Program

E. Hall Downes begins his series of contract bridge lessons tonight in the clubrooms. Allan Scott, of the Theater Guild, will be the speaker for the drama tea Tuesday and Elmer Kenyon, of Carnegie Institute of Technology, will be the library committee's speaker on the sixteenth. Mrs. F. F. Rohrer is arranging the program for the musicale on the seventeenth, when the program will be presented in the Urban room of the William Penn by the Tuesday Musicale Club Ensemble under the direction of Ruth Thoburn Knox; Rose Leader Chislett, contralto, and Georgia Orwig, piano.

The French luncheon is the newest activity of the club. The club secretary is taking reservations for this affair, at which conversation on prepared subjects will be conducted in French under Mme. Louis Ritz.

* * *

This month's meeting of the Triangle Club of Wilkinsburg will be held tomorrow in the home of Mrs. William Johns, Franklin avenue, with Mrs. Harry Boyer and Mrs. F. A. Nield as assisting hostesses. * * *

A reception, tea and musicale are slated by the Outlook Alliance for Thursday at the Congress of Clubs. The program will be by Mary Rhoades McBride, contralto, and Miss Betty Heyser and Miss Mildred Wood, who will give a two-piano recital. Donations of food for unemployed blind will be received.

SEMI-SHEER FABRICS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 6.—There are certain weaves that never go in waves. Always there is a steady demand for them, no matter what particular material may be the darling of the mode. And this is true of the semi-sheer fabrics and it is distinctly easy to see through the why and wherefore of this. Most of us know that while chiffon is lovely and velvet is grand, the ideal frock is one whose fabric makes a happy compromise between the two weights. And so for distinction, for charm and for comfort, we turn to the georgettes, the crepe romains and the marocains, knowing that such materials are always in the limelight and that they make up into beautiful dresses, while they can be deftly manipulated and handled, and that they can be worn regardless of the season, and the occasion. Parisiennes are extremely fond of such fabrics and always, quite as matter of course, include some frocks in these mediums in their wardrobe, whether it be winter or summer. And there are not many materials that are so indifferent to the thermometer, are there?

* * *

SHOWN TODAY is a most delightful restaurant ensemble done by Chanel in black crepe romain, one of the most liked of the semi-sheer family. Over a decollette bodice with a deep V in back is worn a jacket of the same material with smart sleeves in two-thirds length. A pleated bow is appliqued at the front of the bodice. The clinging hipline, liked by Chanel, is present in [illegible] but there is fulness in the lower part of the skirt, achieved by fan-pleated panels set in front and back. Placed at the base of the lower hip piecing is another fan-shaped piece, rather like a low-poised bustle.

BLAINE BLOCKS CREDIT BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—The administration's plan to rush the $2,000,000,000 reconstruction Finance Corporation bill through the Senate was blocked today by Senator Blaine (Rep.), of Wisconsin, who charged it was designed to aid the banks that "brought on the depression" and to "produce an upward turn in the stock market."

Blaine objected to immediate consideration of the measure, protesting against the administration's haste to enact a bill which "will provide not a single mouthful of food for the hungry nor a single work day for the working man."

Under the rules the bill went to the calendar. Administration leaders can start debate on it tomorrow if they command a majority vote of the Senate.

Drivers' License Blanks Fail to Specify $2 Fee

The 1932 applications for drivers' licenses issued by the Pennsylvania Department of Revenue, Harrisburg, while announcing that payment should be made in separate checks or money orders, but not in cash, fail to mention that the amount of the checks or money orders should be $2, the Pittsburgh Motor Club revealed.

The department has been advised by motor club officials to stamp the renewal fee on applications as yet not mailed. First applications were in the mail January 3. Drivers are not required to have their 1932 licenses in their possession until March 1, club officials said.

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—(Universal.)—A storm of great intensity was sweeping the country between the Rocky Mountains and the Appalachians today. Heavy snowfall blocked highways and crippled wire service in Iowa, Southern Minnesota and Wisconsin. Airplanes were grounded.

The storm was centered over Southern Illinois and Missouri, moving northeast. Its full force was expected to be felt in the Great Lakes region.

Torrential rains fell in the South, Shreveport, La., reporting four inches, with an inch and a half reported at Dallas and Oklahoma City.

Philadelphia Holds Vote Machine Parley

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Solution of the voting machine problem confronting Philadelphia County was sought today at a conference between County Commissioners and Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the commonwealth. The Commissioners recently rejected bids from three companies seeking to supply 700 machines needed here, despite Beamish's warning he would order the machines himself and bill the county if the Commissioners failed to purchase them.

Two Autoists Shoot 'Good Samaritan'

SELINSGROVE, Pa., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Roy Hackenberg, 35, of Mount Pleasant Mills, was shot and seriously wounded early today by one of two men he helped fix a flat tire.

The victim told police that after helping the men with the tire in front of his house, he discovered they had stolen tools and other equipment from his car, which had been standing nearby. He followed them and was shot, he said, when trying to recover his property.

COMMISSIONERS BEGIN WORK ON BUDGET

New Deal on Here; McGovern Chief Dealer

By MARK SHIELDS

Mark Shields

Unless the pressure of local affairs interferes, County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern will be in Harrisburg Friday to talk with Gov. Pinchot. He will be there at the invitation of the Governor, who also realizes that there is a new deal here, and that McGovern is one of the chief dealers.

The Commissioner has not been satisfied with some recent political gestures of the Governor. This dissatisfaction started shortly after Pinchot took office the second time, apparently overlooking in his appointments many of the available persons who had been active in his behalf, not only in the last campaign, but over a period of years. The Governor leaned principally on the "converts."

Mr. McGovern only remonstrated once, but with good effect. He is one of the few within the Pinchot circle who talks turkey to the executive, and says exactly what he thinks. He is about the only one who can get away with it, the Governor being a type who does not relish vigorous differences with his policies or pronouncements.

* * *

McGovern in Key Post In Appointments Here

Mr. McGovern is chairman of the county board. He will want to be consulted about practically every state appointment made here in the future. For in the changed state of affairs Mr. McGovern is more important to Mr. Pinchot than is the Governor to the Commissioner.

If Mr. Pinchot seeks either delegates to the national convention or legislators favorable to his policies he must consult Mr. McGovern. Together with Commissioner C. M. Barr, who distinctly dislikes the Governor, Mr. McGovern has gained a virtual control of the election machinery of the county.

It is not thinkable they and William D. Mansfield will devote this power to the unfair and illegal uses to which it has been put in the past, but it gives a firmer foundation for dealing with the Governor. It will not be new for McGovern to speak frankly and vigorously to the Governor, but it will be the first time that his words ever had behind them the authority which goes with the chairmanship of the county board.

McGovern admires the Pinchot principles. But he is a forthright person who would not hesitate if he thought he was right to break with the individual, though adhering to his interpretation of those principles, particularly as there are times when he resents the maneuvers of two or three men who now have the Governor's ear. Some within the Pinchot group, playing their politics, have treated Mr. McGovern with light tolerance in the past—but no more.

Beck Statement Holds Out Hope for Davis

More than two weeks ago it was written in this column that William Vare might be a candidate for the United States Senate seat now occupied by James Davis. It was added that if Vare did not run Congressman James M. Beck might.

Beck has taken cognizance of the situation in a statement which offers Davis more hope than he had a right to expect at this time. First of all, he declares for Vare and demands that Davis step aside if the Philadelphia leader runs. That is natural. But should ill health prevent a Vare campaign of "vindication," Beck holds out an implied pledge of Philadelphia support to Davis if the latter will declare himself unreservedly wet.

True, Beck says he might be a candidate if party loyalty demanded, but that demand would hardly arise if Davis met the wet test—and continued to represent Philadelphia first of all in patronage applications at Washington. Davis managed to sidestep the prohibition question in his previous election. He was thought wet by some, dry by others, and each voted for him as a champion of their conception of purity. Beck makes plain that no such obscurity will be permitted this year to any one who gets Philadelphia support.

* * *

Davis' Only Danger Seems Vare Candidacy

In light of the Beck declaration, Davis seems to stand only in danger of a Vare candidacy. Those closest to the Philadelphia leader, with the possible exception of one member of his family, vigorously oppose the rigors of another campaign. Granting that the former Senator might sit on his porch at Atlantic City and be elected through a sentimental appeal, it is feared the mental stress involved in any political adventure would be too taxing.

There has been revived the story that Davis might move east to relieve Pittsburgh of the burden of carrying two Senators. That may not be so important now, in view of a new plan reported under consideration. There are Philadelphians resentful of the Mellon regime who would like to terminate the service of Senator Reed. Should Davis be reelected, then in 1934, when Reed's term expires, the claim might be advanced that it was time one of the Senators should be an easterner.

If Davis is a candidate with Philadelphia support, and if he maintains his little more than technical residence in Pittsburgh, it will be clear that Philadelphia intends to fight Reed.

'MASTER MIND' AND HUSBAND FACE CHARGE

Pair Said to Admit Owning Bogus Money Equipment Seized at Confluence

Mrs. Esther Anderson, 29, dark haired and attractive, reputed "master mind" of counterfeiters who flooded Pittsburgh and other cities with spurious $10 gold certificates during the past four months, and her husband, Joseph Anderson, 28, of Confluence, Pa., last night were taken to Toledo, to face charges of making and passing bogus notes.

They were said to have confessed being the owners of a complete equipment for making notes, buried in a hillside near Confluence, Pa., and found by United States Secret Service operatives. Mrs. Anderson, it was said, is under indictment in Federal Court at Toledo on a previous accusation of counterfeiting.

TWO HUSBANDS JAILED

Secret Service operatives say she was the wife of Tony Bless, arrested in Toledo in 1928 for counterfeiting $20 Federal Reserve Bank notes, and the Federal Court in that city sentenced him to 14 years in Atlanta Penitentiary. Prior to that time she had been known to the Secret Service as the wife of a counterfeiter named Jirinec, who also served a penitentiary term for counterfeiting.

After Bless started serving his sentence she was said to have "married" Anderson, employed by a bag manufacturing concern in Toledo, and to have taught him counterfeiting methods.

CONCEALS PLANT

Anderson was caught in Detroit December 23, where he was alleged to have passed a fake bill. Mrs. Anderson, who was in an automobile nearby, officers say, hurried to Confluence and concealed the counterfeiting equipment under a chicken coop.

She then went to Toledo, and from there was said to have notified friends at Confluence to remove the apparatus to a safer place. Last Sunday she was arrested in Toledo and brought to Pittsburgh. At the same time her husband was brought from Detroit.

They were taken to Confluence by W. A. Landvoigt, head of the Secret Service in the Pittsburgh district; his aides, Fred Gruber and John Kettl; Operatives George Boos, of Detroit, and Harry Cooper, of Cleveland, and the "plant" unearthed.

CITY MAY NEED HELP, MAYOR TELLS DAVIS

Kline Sees No Immediate Emergency But Emphasizes Tax Payment Necessity

Mayor Charles H. Kline today informed United States Senator James J. Davis that unless citizens of Pittsburgh pay their taxes promptly during 1932, Federal aid for the unemployed of the city may be necessary.

Kline's letter was an answer to one from the Senator asking if such aid would be necessary this year. The Mayor wrote:

"So far it appears that such aid will not be necessary, but unless the taxpayers pay their assessments promptly it may be needed before the year ends."

Senator Davis' letter was addressed to all mayors and burgesses in the state.

RELIEF OPPOSED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—First returns on the Davis poll to determine the need of direct federal relief for the unemployed shows a majority of more than two to one Pennsylvania communities against such a course.

At the end of the first day after Senator Davis wired heads of more than 900 cities and boroughs of his state, 86 responses showed a preponderant trend away from need for federal assistance. Gov. Pinchot has contended such aid is necessary to prevent distress in the state over the winter.

SOME ASK AID

Some of the towns gave qualified answers, such as that received from Charleroi, where it was said federal aid "would be mighty helpful" but would not be sought unless absolutely necessary, because "we are not asking for a dole."

Among municipalities declaring federal aid not necessary were New Wilmington, Philipsburg, Tionesta, Windber, Carlisle, Somerset, Bradford, Apollo, Carnegie, Elizabeth, McDonald, Mercer, Millvale, Smethport and Williamsport.

Those asking help included Fallston, Forty Fort, Rochester, Jeannette, Johnstown, Bellevernon, New Brighton, New Kensington and South Brownsville.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

ABOARD S. S. RAWALPINDI, Jan. 6.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph.

Will Rogers

What are they doing over home about the sales tax? That's the best and most equitable tax there is. The gasoline tax which is nothing but a sales tax, has proven painless, productive and punitive. Now if a tax on gasoline keeps up all the roads why would not a tax on light wines and beers keep up the House of Representatives; one on soft drinks and Jamaica ginger and Camembert cheese keep up the state; mineral water and cracked ice the state Legislatures and so on, on everything that we have to have or hire, and make each stay within the budget. For instance, if people wasn't drinking so much beer we wouldn't have many Congressmen. If tooth paste and facial creams had a slump why cut the President's salary in proportion. It looks like a good scheme from over here. Yours, WILL.

NEW SOLICITOR, TAX BOARD TO BE NAMED

County Millage Rate First Job Facing New Board; Seven Appointments Due

The new Board of County Commissioners will settle down to business today by tackling the 1932 budget. Budget sessions will continue daily until the job is finished and the millage set.

After two lengthy executive sessions yesterday afternoon and last night, at which it was expected that the County Solicitor and the members of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes would be appointed the commissioners adjourned without making any decision.

The appointments will probably be decided upon prior to the budget session today. Mortimer B. Lesher, whose term as County Solicitor ended with the expiration of the old Board of Commissioners' terms, left last night for Philadelphia to appear before the Supreme Court in the Town Hall bond case.

Although none of the Commissioners would comment on the county solicitorship it is believed that Lesher will not be reappointed but will be retained as counsel in cases now pending.

The Commissioners have not indicated who is being considered for appointment to the seven vacancies on the Tax Board. The jobs pay $5,000 a year.

Put Congress On the Air and Also on the Spot

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Good idea to put Congress on the air and find how those boys spend their time and our money.

Why should legislation be a secret like the formula for making tooth paste? Why should the people's choice become too choice for the people?

Why should we elect a senator to Washington and then have him swallowed in the quicksands of parliamentary procedure and engulfed in the whirlpool of mysterious caucuses?

If the motormen and the conductors know which way the trolley car is going so should the passengers.

A national hookup would allow us to know what the senators were talking about. Provide we understood it.

A Congressman going to Washington is not a local boy making good in the big city. He is in the big city that made good in spite of the local boys.

We should like to get a daily broadcast of senatorial capers. We will be glad when we can do it.

In the meantime, like Mahatma Gandhi getting dressed for the opera, we are doing the best we can with the material at hand.

'PACIFISTS' ON ARMS GROUP

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (INS)—Secretary of State Stimson appeared before the House Foreign Affairs Committee today, described the American delegation to the forthcoming Geneva disarmanent conference as "practical pacifists," but added:

"If the United States does not send a delegation, the whole peace and stability of the world will receive a setback almost incalculable."

Stimson told the committee he could not conceive that the policy of the American government or the delegation would permit discussion of cancellation of war debts.

He said further that American participation at the Geneva conference would "not in the slightest degree" mean entry of the United States into the League of Nations, either legal, mental or moral."

DRYS DISPUTE FINN ENVOY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—(AP)—The Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals today formally reasserted that Finland's recent prohibition referendum result "was affected by outside pressure."

Deets Pickett, research secretary of the board, issued a lengthy formal rejoinder to a statement yesterday by L. Astrom, the Finnish Minister, in denial of an assertion by the board that the referendum had been influenced by "European liquor trades." Pickett said:

"Only a few weeks before the referendum took place, the former French Premier, Tardieu, now Minister of Agriculture, caused to be published in Finland an astonishing interview in which he said that he did not see how the Finns could accept such unreasonable legislation as the prohibition law, and further asserted that France, the European banker of the moment, would prefer to grant loans to those countries which buy her products, referring obviously to wine."

SomePeopleMistakeMeaning Of Companionate Marriage

"Is this companionate marriage business fair to the girl?" Alice wants to know.

No, she isn't in the plot, but her cousin is—her handsome cousin Bob, whom she had always thought the grandest kid on earth. Now Alice can't think of Bob without a sickening choke in her throat, for Bob has persuaded Helen to go through a "secret companionate marriage pact" with him, and Alice is horrified.

"But why all this fuss?" says Bob. "I'm crazy about Helen. I'll marry her some day, of course when I can afford it. In the meantime what's the harm? No one will ever know except the three of us. So long as we're happy, what does it matter?"

But that argument doesn't convince Alice. Does it convince you?

SHOCKED BY NEWS

"Dear Sally:—

"I have a cousin with whom I have shared all confidences ever since I was a little tot. We have been better pals than most brothers and sisters. He has become engaged to Helen, a lovely sweet girl who I think will make him a fine wife.

"Here's the problem. We were having a talk the other day and he told me that he and she had been living as though they were married—companionate marriage, he put it. It was like a blow to me. I had thought better of him than that.

"I tried to argue with him that he was wrong, but he says it is all okay—that since he intends to marry her some day when he gets a steady job and no one will ever know but us, he figures they're all right in everything they do. I believe he is only kidding himself. What do you think?

"He had to work very hard to do away with the prejudice her parents had against him. They think he is fine now, and I try to tell him he should not take advantage of the faith they all have in him. Supposing something should happen to him and people should find him out? What would become of Helen then?

"Oh, I'm all so muddled up! But is this companionate marriage business fair to the girl? Shouldn't Bob consider her too much to go in for anything like that? What's your idea?

"ALICE."

What's my idea? Before I tell you that, let me put you right on one point, honey. This affair which Bob and Helen are calling companionate marriage is nothing of the sort, and if they are justifying their act by thinking that Judge Lindsey sanctioned this plan, they are making a tragic mistake.

Companionate marriage is real marriage, legal as any marriage there is. The parties to a companionate marriage must obtain a license and go before a judge or a clergyman just like any other couple and make their vows just as grandpa and grandma made them.

The difference between a companionate marriage and any other kind is that the couple decide to have no children until they are able to take care of them, or perhaps even to live in separate places until they are able to go to housekeeping together. All marriages are companionate until children come.

AN OLD STORY

Also, under Judge Lindsey's plan, our divorce situation would be simplified. Companionate marriage would have to be legally dissolved just like any other, but if the couple were childless, the divorce would be granted if either or both parties desired it. Our long involved contests would not be possible, nor would it be possible for one party to hood the other in unwilling bondage.

There's the truth about companionate marriage and Bob and Helen's affair is, of course, not a companionate marriage at all, but simply free love and as such, a contemptible, selfish gratification on Bob's part.

There's nothing new or startling about free love. It's as old as the jungle.

But don't get the idea that I am blaming Bob entirely. Helen is just as responsible as he is.

World Full of Young Couples Contented With Little Homes—Fay King

YOU FIND THEM IN LITTLE PLACES, COMPLETELY HAPPY TO BE TOGETHER
THERE IS RESPECT AND DIGNITY IN THEIR LOVE
IT IS NOT ONE WILD EVENING FOR THEM, BUT A LIFE TIME TOGETHER
FAY-KING

By FAY KING.

The world is full of young couples who fell in love and married and are serenely happy in their little nests of homes raising a little family.

One does not have to go far to find such happy couples.

You find them side by side at the shows, and not in the most expensive seats, if it is a play.

They are not holding hands, perhaps, but there is a certain understanding and complete contentment in being together that means so much more.

They mean to go through life together.

They will never quite comprehend the wild and unhappy news they read of shattered shallow lives.

They are serious and sincere.

Heart of a Wife -:-

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Avis Arlen Breaks in on a 'Farewell Scene'

Without appearing to do so, I watched Avis Arlen narrowly as I told her that she must give an engaged couple time to kiss each other good night. I did not know how much Noel had told her of his relation to Mary, and of course Marion's remark that Mary was "Noel's fiancee on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays could be taken either as a jest or in earnest, as suited the mood of the auditor. That Avis Arlen would wish to consider it only as jest I was very sure. But I told myself grimly, she could not laugh away the comment I had just made.

She had been so utterly ruthless, so regardless of opinion in her open pursuit of Noel that I half expected her to show some sign of chagrin at my announcement.

"Oh! Lovely fun!" she gurgled for the fourth or fifth time since her entrance and I made a mental computation of how many times she must use the expletive in the course of a day.

"No—el's been a naughty boy," she went on with a pout. "He has been holding out on Avis. We have had confidential talks this summer, just like brother and sister, you know—" She cast a demure look at me while her face took on what Dicky would term that No. 35 Madonna look. "He has told me so much about his life and has spoken of Miss Harrison, of course, many times. He said she was so brilliant and that his father was planning to make her the most famous Veritzen star of all but, somehow, I got the impression that she had no time for love and romance, that all her mind was set upon her career. And he was engaged to her all that time! Naughty No—el!" "Well—" she looked off into space with a tiny contraction of her darkened eyebrows. "I can understand why he wouldn't want to tell me about her."

There was a certain note of smug satisfaction in her voice which made my fingers tingle with the desire to shake every hairpin out of her blonde curls. She meant me to believe, and I have no doubt she believed herself, that the reason Noel had not told her of his engagement to Mary was because he had succumbed to her blandishments and forgotten about his erstwhile sweetheart.

"Of course," I said quickly, "I know also why he did not tell you of his engagement. Noel is the type of high-principled sensitive man who considers a relationship of that kind too sacred for speech concerning it. He cannot help speaking of her brilliance, because he is so proud of her. But he would be the last person to flout his betrothal before an outsider." I hoped that she caught the delicately malicious stress I put upon the last word.

"Oh! but you mustn't call me an 'outsider' to No—el," she said, with eyes widened like those of a child suddenly reproved. "I know No—el would never call me that. He may be engaged to Miss Harrison"—her voice contained a distinctly incredulous question mark—"but there is something between No—el and me very unusual—I can't explain it, but I am not an outsider to No—el."

Her mother's musical well-bred voice came from the other door. "Avis! hurry up dear! Mr. Veritzen is waiting. The girl took a step toward the door through which Noel and Mary had gone. "I'll call No—el," she volunteered smoothly.

"No, don't trouble yourself." I moved swiftly between her and the door, for I knew that the next instant would see her interrupting the emotional farewell which Noel and Mary were exchanging. "I'll bring Noel. Go and tell your mother that he'll be with you directly."

She turned docilely enough, and walked toward her mother, while I opened the door into the hall, taking care to make an undue amount of noise as I did so. But Noel and Mary were either to oblivious of everything else to hear me, or else counted so much upon my very real affection for them that they did not move from the close embrace in which he was holding her.

"I am sorry, dears," I said gently, "but I am afraid you will have to hurry up this goodby. Your father, Noel, is getting very impatient and I had all I could do to keep Miss Arlen from coming out to fetch you at his bidding."

Noel growled an objurgation not particularly complimentary to Miss Arlen, but Mary broke into a tinkle of amused laughter.

"I wish you had, Auntie Madge?" she said, "we'd have given her an eyeful, wouldn't we, No—el?" There was delicate malice in her use of Noel's name as Avis Arlen pronounced it. Noel gave a little groan.

"Don't!" he said hoarsely.

Mary drew his head down and kissed him, tenderly, regardless of my presence.

"All right," she said, "I won't unless you begin to get soulful. Tell me something. Is papa trying to hitch you up with that?"

The door into the living room opened again and Avis Arlen was framed there. "No—el, don't you know daddy's waiting?" she said reprovingly.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

After All, 'Bilious' Is not the Same as 'Pious'

Some persons have the faculty of expressing a big thought in a few words. Years ago New York City had a Mayor of this type. In closing a controversy with a prominent clergyman, he exclaimed, "Some people think they are pious when they are only bilious."

Dr. Copeland

At the time the Mayor uttered these words they were well understood by the public, because the term "biliousness" was in common use then. It is not so common today. Indeed, it is a word laughed at by the doctors. Like "heart failure" and other terms of olden days, it has been discarded.

Yet there are plenty of people in our great country who know exactly what is meant when the word bilious is used. It describes a condition in which the tongue is coated, elimination is lowered, the breath is foul and the action of the liver is stagnated.

If one has all the symptoms which used to be traced to biliousness, you can realize that with such failure of digestion there must be loss of good-nature. There are sure to be, more or less, sourness of disposition and other characteristics associated in the common mind with piety.

I don't just know why a really pious man should be long-faced. My conception of religion is that it ought to make one happy, smiling and cheerful. But I can quite understand that many people of the bilious temperament might readily mistake their own solemnity of mind as an evidence of piety.

The Mayor was not far wrong, then, in saying that some people are really bilious when they think they are pious.

Anything that interferes with the manufacture and flow of bile will result in more or less disturbance of digestion. Of course, there are plenty of digestive disorders which have absolutely no relationship to the secretion of bile. It is a fact, however, that the failure of the glands to supply the various secretions will make trouble. These secretions are essential to the proper preparation and uses of food. If they are not supplied, unpleasant symptoms are produced and ultimately the health will be impaired.

Preparation of the food for normal digestion begins in the mouth. It is necessary that the food be cut, crushed, pulverized and otherwise prepared by the teeth. Proper chewing is essential. While we are chewing the food our salivary glands are mixing saliva with it. This mixture starts its digestion. Unless the food is cut into fine particles, softened by the addition of saliva and chemically acted upon by the saliva, the food does not go into the stomach in a form acceptable to that organ.

Without that preparation there is immediate interference with the normal action of the stomach. The acids which in reasonable and proper quantities are essential to good digestion will be secreted in such large amounts as to irritate the lining of the stomach. This helps to develop the symptoms referred to as biliousness.

It is common to have headache in connection with this condition. It may take the form of a sick headache. In that event there may be nausea and even vomiting.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Question of Grace

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a young girl of 15. My mother and father are divorced, and I am living with my mother, who has remarried. Now my problem is this:

What shall I call my mother's second husband? When speaking of him to my friends, I am at a loss as to what to call him. If I am speaking to a person who does not know the circumstances I call him "my father," but if I am speaking to a person who does know the circumstances, I don't know what to call him. When speaking to him directly, I call him by his first name. I don't call him "Father" because I see my own father often and I feel that I am right in not calling my mother's second husband "Father."

Please advise me. R.

I suggest that you solve this problem of the name by calling your mother's second husband Uncle John or whatever his first name is. This is very often done and seems to be the easiest and most gracious thing to do. It is, as you see, equally good when speaking to him or of him, to those who know him and those who don't. You are too young to call him by his first name. Talk this suggestion over with your mother and see if she agrees.

Returning Calls

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. As a newcomer to a town, when returning the first call of friends, should I leave cards? Should I leave my husband's cards as well as my cards?

2. When is the proper time to produce these cards?

3. Is it necessary to leave cards each time a call is made thereafter? READER.

1. Yes, in returning the first call you should leave your cards and also your husband's cards. As a matter of fact, this is one of the most important calls that you can make, and you should register your social intentions as punctiliously as possible, so that you will take your place where you want to take it in the community.

2. Leave them either as you enter or as you leave on the table in the entrance hall.

3. If you make the succeeding calls with a certain degree of formality, then you would leave the cards, but if these calls are eventually made with a certain casualness, then it will not be necessary to leave cards.

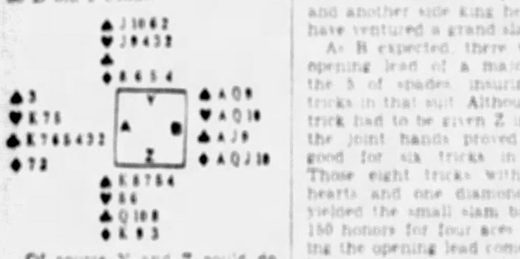
OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Making a Difficult Choice

Three players have passed on the hands shown below. B had a problem to decide whether he should at once bid 2-No Trumps, 3-No Trumps, or employ the conventional opening bid of 2-Clubs, to discover whether or not his partner held a quick trick. The 4-3-3-3 distribution of B's hand was against making an opening bid of diamonds. Bidding two of that suit would not necessitate a response by A, an opening bid of 3-Diamonds might elicit an assist upon four trumps, without a single high side card. Everything considered, an opening bid of 2-Clubs appeared best calculated to produce the most information from partner's response, so B bid 2-Clubs.



Of course Y and Z could do nothing but A raised the declaration to 3-Clubs, thereby showing that his clubs were bidable and that he held at least one quick trick. Instead of showing diamonds, B bid 4-No Trumps. B reasoned as follows: my partner's quick trick must either consist of both K-Q of clubs or of two of the missing kings, to be buddable his clubs must be at least as good as K-Q-X-X or five to either K or Q, either of those three possible holdings insure us a minimum of four club tricks; my diamonds must be worth a minimum of three tricks; the opening lead at no-trumps probably will be a spade or a heart, giving me three tricks in those two major suits. This gives me an almost certain 10 tricks if my partner's clubs are very long he will rebid them, or support my no-trumps if they are headed by K-Q.

Upon B's promise to again bid in case he did not like a club rebid, A overcalled his partner with 5-Clubs. B jumped into No-Trumps and A passed, if he had held both the K-Q of clubs and another side king he would have ventured a grand slam.

As B expected, there was an opening lead of a major suit, the 5 of spades, insuring two tricks in that suit. Although one trick had to be given Z in clubs, the joint hands proved to be good for six tricks in clubs. Those eight tricks with three hearts and one diamond trick yielded the small slam bid and 150 honors for four aces. Having the opening lead come up to him was one reason why B insisted upon no-trumps, that opening lead offset the usual advantage of greater flexibility at a suit make. At clubs A must have had to take one finesse that would have cost him a trick. Not even a wild lead of hearts could have beaten the contract at no-trumps.

CARNEGIE PRIMED FOR W. & J.

Sport Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

Protection for Passer. Not Halted by Warner. Confidence of McGraw. Lehigh and State Lead. Boom Blake as Referee. New Track Sensation.

THROWER, LIKE KICKER, NEEDS GUARD

POP WARNER, holding that the thrower does not come in for much rough handling, is thus far the only prominent football man who has openly opposed the movement to obtain for the forward passer the same protection against roughing by opponents that is now provided for the kicker. In spite of Warner's refusal to help, it is probable that the views of Benny Friedman and others will cause strong pressure to be brought upon the rule-makers to consider legislation of this nature.

Benny Friedman

As George Trevor points out, the present code, while it accords the kicker every protection, does not provide any penalty for roughing the passer, though the latter, from the very nature of his duties, is in no position to defend himself. It is admitted that the blanket code for unnecessary roughness could be evoked to safeguard the passer, but it seldom is, because officials follow the trend of the ball and congregate at the point to which the pass is thrown. They are so intent on detecting interference with the receiver that they overlook the plight of the thrower.

JUST WHAT THE passer is up against, Warner's statement notwithstanding, because the rules give him no protection may be judged from an experience related by Benny Friedman. There is no man in the game better qualified to discuss passing than the former Michigan star, who was the best thrower in the country. Friedman recalls a mauling he received from Wickhorst and Eddy, a great pair of Navy tackles, which does not bear out Warner's remarks that the passer escapes rough handling.

"They knocked me down 26 times that afternoon," Benny said, "yet they were within their rights under the letter of the rule. That kind of beating surely takes it out of a man. Once I sent big Oesterbaan, our 190-pound end, back to throw the ball. He was flattened savagely by the two husky Middies. 'If it's all the same to you, Benny,' he told me, 'I'd rather not throw any more passes.'

"THE RULES GIVE the kicker special protection. If you just run into him, it costs you five yards. If you knock him down, there's a 15-yard penalty. If you rough him up, you lose 25 yards and are subject to disqualification.

"The forward passer is just as helpless to defend himself, as his throwing arm is raised and his eyes are scanning the skyline for eligible receivers, yet the rules give him no specific protection." It is argued by Trevor that under the present system ends and tackles are taught to rush the passer. Some of them do not stop at that, but smear him all over the landscape.

THEN THERE'S THE trick of boring an end dart in and rap the passer's upraised arm on the biceps with the edge of the hand. After that has been pulled a few times, the thrower's arm goes lame, his accuracy is affected and he begins to miss the moving target. "By that method," one coach is quoted, "you can destroy the accuracy of a hair-trigger passer. If we were playing a team with a passer as good as Barry Wood, of Harvard, I'd spot him four bull's-eye throws and then he'd be through for the afternoon as an aerial sharpshooter." By reason of these conditions it is contended that the passer requires safeguarding even more than the kicker, and a determined effort is to be made to get it for him, regardless of Warner's refusal to help.*

John J. McGraw

JOHN J. McGRAW says he can't recall a winter when he looked forward more hopefully to a successful season for the Giants. For one thing, the pitching will be improved, he thinks. He had the leading two hurlers of the National League for 1931 in Bill Walker and Carl Hubbell in the earned-run records, and he looks for them to get better results this year in the actual winning of games.

"I expected Walker to finish well up in the list and I think he will do fully as well next season," said the Giant boss. "Hubbell lost a lot of tight games in the closing innings in 1931, but with the added experience he has gained through another year in the majors I look for him to win many more games for us in 1932. I feel confident we'll be in the thick of the fight from start to finish."

SOME OF THE STORIES sent out from the East in connection with the so-called "reforms" suggested in college athletic reorganization would give the impression that the idea is entirely new and originated at the institutions now advocating such steps.

But as a matter of fact, many of the principles in the reorganization platform were initiated in the East by Lehigh University and The Pennsylvania State College, though the part they played in the leadership is now being overlooked.

RECENT PRESS DISPATCHES relative to the reorganization at New York University, and the discussion of college athletics in general at the holiday meetings in that city, failed to mention the fact that Lehigh and Penn State were the prime movers in athletic "reform." Most of the dispatches credited the steps of that nature at certain other institutions as being without precedent. Yet Lehigh's reorganization became effective as far back as 1926, and Penn State followed with its announcement of a new policy in 1927. It is hard to recall that any other announcements of like nature were made until about the time of the Carnegie Foundation's report a little more than two years ago.*

THEY'VE STARTED A boom for George Blake as referee of the Schmeling-Walker fight in Miami next month. The stand is taken that with such an admittedly capable official available no chances should be taken with any referee of lesser repute.

One advantage seen in the staging of the fight in Miami is that there will be no insistence by the local fistic authorities that one of the home-town referees be given the assignment. Political pressure in connection with the important job has more than once resulted in an appointment that turned out unsatisfactorily.

BLAKE IS HELD to be the logical man for the post, and it is urged that Joe Jacobs and Jack Kearns spare the public the grief of the usual late squabble about the referee, intended solely for ballyhoo purposes, by having George's name inserted in the original articles.

Fighters managed by Kearns have profited by several weird decisions in the past, and the presence of a man of Blake's standing as third man in the ring is considered advisable to assure the fans that something of the same sort is not to be pulled again.

Ed Siegel

VIRTUALLY UNKNOWN AS a schoolboy sprinter, never a factor in track competition, and never before entered in an invitation meet, Ed Siegel, 19-year-old Brooklyn boy carrying the colors of the Swedish-American A. C., has made himself the talk of the track world. He was the outstanding star of the sixth annual Knights of Columbus indoor meet in New York, making a clean sweep of the sprint series at 60, 80 and 100 meters and outrunning a field of noted performers that included Ira Singer, last year's indoor champion. At 60 meters, Siegel beat Singer by a foot and equaled the indoor record of 7 1-5 seconds; at 80 yards he won again by a narrow margin, this time over Bernard Krosney, and at 100 meters he spreadeagled the field and led Krosney to the tape by 5 feet. Not a bad night's work. It rocketed Siegel from obscurity into the national spotlight as a possible Olympic hope of Uncle Sam in the 1932 games.*

FELDMAN STAR OF BLUFFITES' VICTORY

GROVE CITY, Pa., Jan. 6.—The Duquesne University passers left here last night with a bare 25-23 victory over Grove City College, in the Pittsburgh team's inaugural basketball test.

Feldman, Dukes' star forward, played a stellar role in the victory, leading a fighting squad of Daviesmen to a triumph that was only interrupted by a deadlock at 22-all three minutes before the contest ended.

TEAMS WORK HARD

Feldman's last bucket and Irwin's toss from the free line put the game on ice.

Every man in uniform was on his toes for the reaction from the packed gymnasium rivaled the traditional days of Joe Smith and his championship five.

The first half, ending 12-10 in favor of the Dukes, was an uneventful episode measured in terms of the swift passing and footwork of the last stanza. The Dukes found the five-men defense of Bob Thorne's team hard to break through and it was not until Feldman solved the enigma in the second half that the Pittsburghers scored with the ease that was necessary to the victory they chalked up. The score moved in a four-point range.

GROVERS TIE COUNT

The Dukes rushed the game in the second half. The clever work of Fegley and Minnick closed the gap, Fegley shooting the deadlock score. During the last 10 minutes it was anybody's game.

Brenner was taken out in the first half with a twisted ankle. The lineup:

Grove City	Fg	F	Pts	Duquesne	Fg	F	Pts
Minnick, f	3	2	8	Feldman, f	5	2	12
Fegley, f	3	3	9	Irwin, f	0	3	3

TO SIGN BOUT TOMORROW

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(INS)—Jimmy Johnston, manager of Madison Square Garden, announced today that contracts for the Max Schmeling-Mickey Walker bout in Miami will be signed at 3 P. M. tomorrow.

The heavyweight champion is to defend his title against Walker, former middleweight king, in the Florida city on February 25.

Jack Kearns, manager of Walker, said he would sign, although he had no faith in Miami as a championship boxing site.

"I'll do anything to get the chance, though," he said.

Meanwhile Kearns took a fling at the comeback pretensions of Jack Dempsey, whom he piloted to the title, saying Dempsey was too old and would be a setup for Walker, let alone any of the big heavyweights.

At the same time Matchmaker Johnston said Dempsey would have to prove his right to a bout with Schmelinz in June by first engaging in a test bout here, if only of six rounds, against a good trial horse on the order of Johnny Risko or Tom Heeney.

Hack to Undergo Pre-Season Grind

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 6.—In order to be in the best possible shape for the approaching season, when he hopes to stage a comeback, Hack Wilson, all-time homerun champion of the National League, will spend two weeks at Hot Springs, Ark., before departing for spring training, it was learned at his home here today.

The former Chicago star said he planned to leave here about February 15, and remain at Hot Springs until ordered to go South to his team's camp.

EDGREN RESIGNS

PACIFIC GROVE, Cal., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Robert Edgren, member of the State Boxing Commission since January 1, 1921, has announced he has sent in his resignation to Gov. James Rolph.

Cooke, of Yanks, Has Shoulder Treated

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Allen (Dusty) Cooke, promising young outfielder of the New York Yankees, who was burning up the American League last summer until he fell and injured his shoulder, has arrived in New York to undergo a series of electrical treatments on the shoulder.

Cooke hopes the treatments will eliminate the stiffness which kept him idle up until the last few weeks of the last campaign.

With the new 23-player limit in effect this year, Cooke must get in shape quickly and show his 1931 spring form if he is to stay with the Yankees, as they can't farm him out another year and can hardly afford to have him holding down a bench job for long.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE HEAT OF A LUMP OF COAL—About 100,000,000 degrees of heat would be required to burn coals so completely that neither smoke, ashes, nor cinders remained. This temperature, the magnitude of which makes our senses reel, hitherto has been connected with astronomical hypotheses only, involving the theory of collisions between two of the brightest fixed stars. Our sun is 92,000,000 miles away and its surface temperature of about 10,000 degrees suffices to burn our skin severely even when exposed in our own moderate latitudes, in spite of the distance. Given an object 92,000,000 times closer and 10,000 as hot, its heating capacity is a mathematical deduction.

TILDEN VICTOR OVER BURKE

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—(AP)—William T. Tilden defeated Albert Burke, professional tennis champion of France, 4-6, 6-1, 6-0, in an exhibition match at the Penn Athletic Club yesterday.

In another singles encounter Emmett Pare, Chicago, lost to Bobby Seller, Los Angeles, 6-4. Only one set was played.

Burke and Pare won a doubles contest from Tilden and Seller, 6-4, 6-3.

Burke defeated Seller, 6-2, 6-3, while the result of the Tilden-Pare match was 6-3, 8-10.

A doubles contest ended with Hans Nusslein and Roman Najuch, German stars, defeating Tilden and Burke, 6-3, 6-2.

Tilden and Vincent Richards, one-time doubles partners and later rivals on the amateur courts, come together tonight in the outstanding match of the tourney.

POLO CONFAB ON TODAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The United States Polo Association will sit in solemn session today and at the close of its meeting the United States may find itself without a 10-goal player for the first time in memory of the oldest divot-replacer at Meadowbrook's international field.

This, that means only one thing: Tommy Hitchcock is believed due for a cut in handicap. For years Hitchcock has been to polo what Ruth is to baseball. Dempsey was to boxing and Hagen to golf. You spoke of polo and you spoke of Hitchcock.

His play in the United States open championships last season was not as good as that of some younger players.

SKIBOS RULE FAVORITES TO COP TONIGHT

GAMES TONIGHT

Wash-Jeff vs. Carnegie Tech, Tech gym, varsity and freshmen.
Geneva vs. Allegheny at Meadville.
West Virginia Wesleyan vs. West Virginia at Morgantown.

By JESS CARVER

Wash-Jeff makes its annual basketball invasion of the more or less sacred precincts of Carnegie Tech tonight, both the Prexy freshmen and varsity quintets engaging the standard-bearers of Skibo. The contest is only the third intercollegiate engagement to be offered in this city this season, Temple University and Yale having preceded the Presidents here. Both invaders were beaten, Temple by Pitt and Yale by Carnegie.

Lou Jagnow

Things have not been any too healthy along basketball lines at Wash-Jeff during the past few seasons and this year's outlook is nothing over which to go into hysterics. The Skibos, with a strong and well balanced squad and with several outstanding individual performers, rule hot favorites to win tonight's ball game. The local boys have taken four out of six starts to date. Wash-Jeff makes its season debut this evening.

LINEUPS SET

Carnegie's starting lineup will consist of Bob Smith and Jagnow at the forwards, Eddie Stentz at center and Capt. Jimmy My Boy Leonard and Red Fergus at the guards.

For Wash-Jeff, Coach Pete Henry, the Man Mountain of college athletics, has decided to test fate with Capt. Joy and a sophomore, Leiber, at the forwards. He'll use another soph, Davies, at center, and will try Furjanic and Shaffer, who plays quarterback on the football team, at the guards. Stew Wilson and Ken McNeil, who gained fame as gridders, are not being used. Both complete their college careers in February.

Dan Brickley and Al Black will handle the game as officials.

The Wash-Jeff and Carnegie game is not the only intercollegiate encounter on the district's list for tonight.

GENEVA PLAYS 'GATORS

In an encounter that would pack 'em in anywhere, Geneva's Covenanters engage Allegheny at Meadville, and West Virginia Wesleyan assists West Virginia to open its winter sport season by tussling with the Mountaineers at Morgantown.

After the basketball game in the Mountaineers' Field House, the Waynesburg and West Virginia varsity wrestling squads will match holds and grips.

The probable Carnegie-Wash-Jeff lineup follows:

Carnegie Tech		Wash-Jeff
Jagnow	f	C. Joy
R. Smith	f	Leiber
Stentz	c	Davies
Leonard (c)	g	Shaffer
Fergus	g	Furjanic

Referee—Dan Brickley. Umpire—Al. Jones Mack.

ELKS HONOR GRID STARS

Coraopolis tendered four of its athletic sons a rousing testimonial banquet at the Coraopolis Elks Club dining room last night, every place at the eight long tables being taken in honor of Joe and Herman LaMark, of New York University; Kermit (Buck) Ewing, of Carnegie Tech, and Ray Anderson, of Pitt. Heaping platters of fried chicken provided the gastronomical motif of the evening and took good care of the inner man.

The guests of honor included Hon. F. C. Gangloff, Burgess of Coraopolis and a member of the State Assembly; Hon. James J. Rooney, of the North Side, also an Assemblyman; Luby DiMeolo, line coach at New York University; Al Irwin, assistant graduate manager of athletics at Carnegie Tech; the Rev. M. J. O'Shea, Charles J. Doyle, baseball writer of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph; Jess Carver, Sun-Telegraph football writer, and Bill Farren, local radio sports announcer. All responded with talks.

C. L. Richey serves in the capacity of toastmaster, with Eddie Peyton as master of ceremonies and Doc Galey's University Orchestra providing the music. Gene Sweeney, Johnny Hazel, James DiMeolo, L. W. Reisdorf and W. W. Ohles made up the committee in charge of the affair.

Capt.-elect Paul Reider and Paul Cuba, of Pitt, and Co-Capt.-elect Bill Sample, of Carnegie Tech, also were on hand.

TOSATTI RITES TONIGHT

Frank Tosatti, manager and steward of the Shannopin Country Club, Ben Avon Heights, is dead. He died after an illness of four months in his quarters at the club yesterday morning at 8:15 o'clock. After several weeks recuperating in the West Penn Hospital, Tosatti was removed to the club where it is said he improved only slightly.

Internationally known as a steward, having been associated with many of the largest hotels and clubs in the United States and Europe, Tosatti came to Shannopin last year from the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, following the death of Frank Ganser, whom he succeeded.

Ganser died suddenly last February from pneumonia, en route here from Chicago on a vacation trip.

Services are to be held at the Gray funeral parlors, Bellevue, this evening after which the body is to be transported to New York for burial. Tosatti, always popular at Shannopin, is survived by his wife and a sister.

Dr. H. C. Carlson, Pitt's brilliant basketball coach, led his Golden Panthers back into the city this morning after their eventful and precedent-setting journey across the nation to California. Both the doctor and his players had as much pep as when they left a month ago. They won five out of 11 games on their transcontinental journey.

PANTHERS BACK FROM TRIP

Pittsburgh's [illegible] basketball team, [illegible] Coach Carlson Lawry, returned home this morning as full of pep and vim as when they left almost a month ago. There will be no practice for the squad, Dr. Carl Carlson announced, [illegible] Navy meeting they'll get together [illegible] next fall. It looks as if [illegible] have to get into another war [illegible] them to meet. Bon [illegible]

Bills Holt, local Negro welterweight boxer, who defeated Davy Grove in their bout at Motor Square Garden last Monday night, was the first opponent to solve Grove's style and fight him correctly . . . After the first few rounds, Bills kept in close and hammered away to the head and body . . . Grove is never so dangerous as when his opponent backs away after leading . . . It is then that he counters with savage force . . . February 25 as the tentative date for the Max Schmeling-Mickey Walker fight in Miami.

Billy Petrolle, the Fargo Express who recently added Billy Townsend to the list of youngsters whose careers he has blasted, speaks sagely of the folly of rushing along boxers too fast . . . "The trouble with these young boxers is that they are shoved along too rapidly," he says. "They lack the polish of experience and do not know how to take care of themselves when they go against someone who really knows how to fight. That's one reason I'd like to get a shot at Lou Brouillard and his welterweight title . . . Lou is an overnight sensation, of limited experience, and I think I could win the title from him on this basis alone."

Another piece of sound advice for fistmen comes from none other than Sam Langford, the old Tar Baby Negro terror of the heavyweights . . . "Dempsey, Berlenbach and all of those other veterans trying comebacks should get wise to themselves and quit the sport while they still have their health," says Langford, now cauliflowered, half blind and broke . . . "Boxers who get anywhere nowadays make enough money to provide against the future," he adds, "and they should realize when their day is done . . . If Dempsey is smart, he will grab himself one good big money fight and then quit for good . . . Even those exhibition bouts in which he is being punched around are not doing him any good."—HARRY KECK.

MID-ATLANTIC TO MEET HERE

The moguls of the Middle Atlantic Baseball League will return to Pittsburgh for their annual meeting this year, January 17, having been set tentatively by President Elmer Daily for the franchise holders to go into a huddle at the Hotel Henry.

At this meeting, President Daily plans to set forth his plan to split the league into two six-club circuits. Daily has had the plan under consideration since the latter part of the 1931 season, and will sound out the league members at the meeting here.

In the event some of the financially weaker clubs deem it inadvisable to continue the possession of their franchises, the league may be reduced to an eight-club circuit.

A haven for the Charleroi, Pa., franchise, which was given up by that city late last season, must be found if there are to be 12 clubs. Daily does not believe this would be difficult.

CHISOX TRADE PAIR

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox have sent Irving Jeffries, utility infielder, and Outfielder Willis Hoffman to St. Paul of the American Association, as part payment for Outfielder Harold Anderson. Hoffman was obtained late last season from Muskogee, Okla.

W. & J. COUNCIL COMPLETED

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 6.—Completion of the personnel of Washington and Jefferson's reorganized athletic council has been announced here by President Ralph C. Hutchinson, who said that Park J. Alexander, of Pittsburgh, and John H. Donnan, of Washington, who recently resigned, had been reappointed and had accepted.

The new council now comprises besides Alexander and Donnan the following: Dr. Hutchinson, Dr. M. A. Dickie, of the faculty; Judge William T. Dom, of Greensburg, and Judge Howard W. Hughes, David C. Morrow and Dr. Clyde E. Tibbens, of Washington.

Announcement also was made that the new council would meet later this week for reorganization and the transaction of business requiring immediate attention. It is probable that at that time a new graduate manager to succeed William G. Theurer will be named. It is generally believed that Wilbur (Pat) Henry, all-America tackle, who has been assistant football coach and basketball tutor, will be chosen.

BROWN FLYING TO BOUT HERE

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Olympic tennis, Youngstown, O.
Willie Hines vs. Frankie Chapo, 12 rounds, and Harry Kid Brown vs. Tom Ryan, 10 rounds, Brooklyn.
Middleweights vs. Leo Bain, 6 rounds, Tacoma, Wash.

By HARRY KECK

Al Brown, world bantamweight champion, is flying to Pittsburgh for his bout with Mose Butch, local ace, at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, following his battle with Speedy Dado at Los Angeles last Monday night.

Brown is coming by airplane to avoid the four days' trip by train and to permit himself to loosen up here before the bout. He also likely will undergo a physical examination upon his arrival to determine his fitness.

Brown, rated a standout in his class, has suffered two decisive setbacks in recent weeks on the Coast, bowing first to Newsboy Brown and then losing nine out of 10 rounds to Dado, indicating that he may not be entirely right at this time. Hence the going-over planned for him when he reaches Pittsburgh. If he is found unfit the bout may be called off to protect the fans, it was said today.

Danny Delmont and Charley Baxter, who won bouts at the Garden last Monday against Eddie Brannon and Joey Thomas, respectively, have been paired for the eight-round semi-final next Monday. Bobby Stewart, Negro featherweight, formerly of Canton, O., will box an opponent to be named in the second bout, and Johnny Montebano, of Braddock, and Bobby Burns, of Swissvale, doing a comeback, are in the opener.

Between Rounds

Tommy Dixon, Negro lightweight winner of the Metro Boxing golden glove tournament and the Pittsburgh Tournament held on the North Side, is ready to turn professional, under the management of Sid Strassberger. Dixon, who fought under the name of Kid Arnaldo and conducts the Arnaldo gym in Lawrenceville, Dixon has joined Johnny Jones, Pat Leary, Dave Rose, Jimmy Pryor and Pete Reed among others Manager Alexander may be reached by calling Mayflower 1412.

Dave Maier and Abie Bain have been matched to box one of the preliminaries of the King Levinsky-Paulino Uzcudun bout in the Chicago Stadium, January 15.

Gary Welch, of Akron, is the new manager of George Manley, Denver light-heavyweight, who is moving to the Ohio city.

Tony Marino's work will be carefully watched on his 10-round scrap against Frank Grande at McKeesport tomorrow night. The brother of Tommy Rizzo has shown as much class his last few times out that the promoters have their eyes on him and are now on several things again with a decisive victory over the Filipino veteran.

The McKeesport card is complete, with Young Rudy and Jimmy Mollette heading the other 10-rounder and Frankie Canella meeting Chet Brown and Sharkey Leahy tangling with Dick Dorset in the two six-rounders.

Forbes

Will Aldrich Prove Finance World Leader?

By B. C. FORBES

WHAT'S YOUR answer?

One of our very large banking concerns found it necessary recently to discharge employes because of lack of work. The records of the employes' savings fund were examined. For years employes had been urged to save systematically. Many of them did.

Mr. Forbes

Which do you think were, as a rule, laid off: those who lived up to the exhortation to save, or those who had not saved?

The savers, rather than the non-savers, were let go.

Those in authority reasoned that the main objective of everybody must be to do everything possible to tide over the present emergency, and that if those employes who were without funds were dropped, they would probably become a charge upon society, whereas those who had a surplus would be in a better position to weather the storm.

Having always advocated rational saving, I find myself sympathizing with the savers who were made victims. Yet, the problem has the other side already mentioned.

I understand inquiries were made and that it was found there were adequate reasons why certain employes had been unable to spare any part of their pay for the savings fund.

So there you are.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED to the publication regularly of short selling data which we were led to believe the New York Stock Exchange governors recently planned?

Why needlessly infuriate the public by continuing to keep this vitally important information a secret shared only by the brokers who are governors of the institution? No adequate reason for withholding the truth concerning the daily volume of short selling has been offered by President Whitney or anyone else. I personally urged upon Mr. Whitney that the figures be published at least weekly and that they be brought up to the last moment possible.

Saturday's and Monday's pressure upon stocks looked suspiciously like bear selling. But, of course, only the most influential members of the exchange have the truth.

Why persist in rubbing the public the wrong way?

WINTHROP W. ALDRICH, very wealthy lawyer son of the late Nelson W. Aldrich, brother-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and now president of the world's largest bank, is quoted as having declared at Washington that American bankers did not "investigate the responsibility and reliability of foreign borrowers before floating their securities to the extent they should have," and added:

"The only explanation I can give is that there was such tremendous competition among bankers of the whole world that normal business methods were not followed."

That is a severe indictment. Mr. Aldrich can talk freely because he was not then a banker. His view unquestionably is shared by those who were induced to buy foreign bonds, which have since declined distressingly.

HAS A NEW potential leader, in the person of Mr. Aldrich, entered the financial world? Nobody today fills the commanding position occupied by the late J. P. Morgan. It was he who became the effective order-issuing commander-in-chief during financial panics.

A military man said at one stage of the World War, after a long deadlock:

"I don't know what he would have done if he had been in it, but I know Napoleon would have done something."

"Jupiter Pluvius" Morgan doubtless would have done something long before now had he been here. No banker has stepped forward to dominate the situation and lay down the law to other banks, the stock exchange governors and others.

A kingdom for a leader!

STEEL OUTLOOK IMPROVING

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The Iron Age tomorrow will say: Steel ingot production has recovered slightly from the low point of the last two weeks of December, now being estimated at 24 per cent. In the corresponding week of 1931 the rate was 41 per cent.

Notwithstanding the slow start of the new year, it is expected that steel operations will continue to gain moderately during January, with the possibility that February will reflect the usual seasonal rise more than this month.

Pig iron production figures for December add emphasis to what is already known of the sharp curtailment in activity last month. The daily average of 31,625 tons and the month's total of 980,376 tons make new low records for the past 10 years.

Furnaces in blast on Jan. 1 were 56, a net loss of 11 from the 67 in service at the beginning of December. The year-end figure is by far the lowest of this century and probably below that of any time since the summer of 1894. Several furnaces that were banked last month are, however, scheduled to resume production shortly.

Heavy melting steel scrap has made another all-time low. The Iron Age composite price having declined to $8.47 from $8.50 a week ago.

Central Loadings Lower for Week

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—During the week ended January 2 New York Central lines handled 36,422 revenue cars, compared with 42,237 in the similar week a year ago and 39,183 cars in the preceding week.

STOCK MARKET PUSHES UP BRISKLY

Firmer Tendency of Previous Session Develops Into Buoyancy; Steel Gains 2 Auburn Advances 11 Points; Steel, A.T.&T., Can Among Shares Gaining 3 to 4

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The first glow of cheer of the new year appeared in the securities markets today, and prices, particularly in shares, swelled impressively.

News from Washington and abroad helped to dissipate the recent gloom in Wall street. Financial quarters were particularly encouraged by advices that the reconstruction finance corporation measure may be passed by Congress this week, and by private banking advices of marked progress abroad in reaching an international agreement on the German debts.

Shorts were caught napping in some of the more volatile stocks. Auburn shot up more than 11 points. Allied Chemical and Norfolk and Western rose 6 or more. American Telephone pushed up about 5. Miscellaneous issues rising 3 or 4 included United States Steel, American Can, North American, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Dupont and others. Gains of a point or two appeared throughout the list.

Much of the advance was achieved in the early trading, but after a period of hesitancy, the market continued to creep higher. Trading was in moderate volume.

Wall street was able to overlook somewhat adverse midweek trade fatistics, in the belief that remedial measures, such as the finance corporation, designed to attack the depression at its roots, were making rapid progress.

The steel trade surveys indicated that the recovery from the year-end slump was proceeding rather more slowly than had been hoped for. Iron Age placed ingot output at 24 per cent of capacity. Nevertheless, a slow upturn during January was forecast with possibly more marked improvement in February.

The report of freight car loadings for the Christmas week showed a somewhat larger than usual decline.

Electric power consumption in the week ended January 2 was off 4.6 per cent from the same period of last year, against 3.3 per cent in the previous week.

The usual easing of the money market after the year end became more conspicuous, with call loans renewing at 3 per cent, against 3½ recently. Funds were offered under 3 per cent in the outside market.

COTTON PRICES SHOW GAINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 2 to 4 points on a renewal of trade buying and covering. March sold at 6.30.

Reports of a firmer tone in the stock market encouraged the buying after the call and March sold up to 6.36 with July advancing to 6.71, making net advances of about 6 to 10 points on the active positions. Brokers who are frequently credited with operating for the co-operative interests were among the early buyers of spring and early summer positions, while there appeared to be some buying for Wall street account which was probably influenced by the better action of the stock market.

The market showed continued steadiness later in the morning with prices working up to 6.42 for March and 6.76 for July, or about 12 to 15 points net higher on the more active positions. An advance of 18 to 25 points in the Bremen market came in for considerable comment and in connection with the better tone of the stock market, no doubt contributed to the advance. The market at midday was quiet and steady within a point or two of the best.

FORECASTERS SHOW MORE CAUTION

Trade Reviewers Believe Story of 1932 to Depend On Political Decisions

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Reviewing the product of the annual reviewers, one finds this year not only a lack of customary optimism, but also an absence of conventional dogmatism. The recurrent theme appears to be that we shall see what we shall see.

Forecasters are partly tongue-tied because of unwillingness to predict political decisions which may prove crucial. Most competent analysts recognize that the story of 1932 will depend largely on a political decision whether to let blind and destructive nature take its course or on one hand or plan and execute specific counter-deflationary measures on the other.

Mr. Rukeyser.

TRUE STABILITY

The last remaining adherents of the pretty much discredited doctrine of laissez faire argue that if no conscious relief plans are adopted recovery will be slower, but it will be permanent in character. That viewpoint strikes me as pedantic. No combination of business circumstances is ever permanent. Any true stability must rest on recognition of the dynamic character of business.

Among more practical minds the chief debate is over method rather than concerning the desirability of interfering with destructive processes which have been pauperizing vast sections of the population.

As the National City Bank points out in its current monthly letter:

"We do not quarrel with the contention that the deflation of credit has become excessive, and we should be glad to see on the part of the banks a greater ability to extend credit and on the part of solvent borrowers a greater willingness to use credit. Some way needs to be found to increase the amount of credit in circulation."

CREDIT CURTAILED

The reason for such a viewpoint is that there has been a drastic curtailment of credit during the past year thwarting business prosperity. For the reporting member banks of the Federal Reserve system alone there was a shrinkage in loans of $3,000,000,000 in 1931.

Since deposits hinge on loans and since bank deposits constitute the chief currency or purchasing power in this country the mechanical effect on buying power can readily be seen. Hoarding of actual currency in large amounts further upset the economic equilibrium. Furthermore the closing of about 2,000 banks in 1931 upset the free flow of credit on which normal business depends. The new public and private bank relief agencies are designed to check the vicious circle which results from banking embarrassments.

Story of a Young Married Couple Caught in Big City's Net

By FAITH BALDWIN

Nevis Is Happy When She Learns Bill Does Not Care for Olive

CHAPTER XVI

Olive was sick with self disgust, with wounded vanity, remembering her fleeting moments in Bill's arms, his mouth upon her own . . . remembering all it had meant to her; all she had meant it to mean . . . mystery, romance, glamour, a sort of love comedy played out under the baby spot of her insatiably theatrical imagination. She remembered the letters she had written him . . . the things she had said, whispered things designed to stimulate him to desire. And now he talked of parked cars and everybody's doing it, like an old tune, an early jazz motif.

She said, as he didn't answer:

"So you never cared at all?"

"No," he told her gravely.

After a minute he said gently:

"Don't think I'm ungrateful. I am not. But I honestly don't believe you mean half you say. You—you work yourself up to a sort of scene and the lines just come naturally. I happen," said Bill, "to be in love with my wife."

Olive laughed.

"That's pretty banal!" she mocked him savagely. "I happen to be in love with my wife. Talk about a tag line! Yet being in love with her you could meet me secretly, take me in your arms—"

He said wearily:

"Oh, cut that out. I've told you it didn't mean anything except a sort of excitement . . . like—like a show or a drink too many."

"Nevis," he went on as she stood there in utter silence, looking out to sea with eyes too furious to harbor tears, "Nevis wanted to come down here to get away from all that sort of thing. I don't mean you," he added hastily.

"Perhaps," she said sweetly, "you mean Harry Carter? So it was Nevis who ran away, after all, was it?"

DEFENDS NEVIS

Bill said evenly:

"That sort of implication won't get you anywhere. Olive. Harry Carter doesn't come into this. The sort of life we led at Westlynne was fun but it was pretty darned futile. We hadn't had much more than time to get acquainted with each other and we'd been married two years. So we pulled up stakes. There never was a time when I'd let Nevis down, really. And certainly not now. I don't know another woman who would have been the sport she's been. She's taken it on the chin and never said a word. She's been miserable. Homesick and unhappy. She hates the climate. She's got a bad dose of malaria. She can hardly drag herself about. There are very few people down here with whom she has anything in common. I can't even give her my companionship, such as it is, for I'm away all day. And she hasn't complained. She suggested this business and so she's sticking to it. She'd rather die than beef about it. And I tell you I'm crazy about her! If she doesn't know it she has less sense than I credit her with, that's all. I tell you she's a wife in a million and I wouldn't give her eyelash for a hundred and twenty pounds of any other woman!" he finished absurdly.

Olive said, shakily:

"You needn't tell me any more. I've been a fool. Lowered my pride—not that pride matters. You see, I thought I could make you happy. I still think so. Happier than Nevis could make you." Took it on the chin, quoted Olive scornfully, why shouldn't she? She hasn't any fight in her!"

Bill said briefly:

"You're pretty wrong. She has more guts than most men I know."

Olive said:

"You stay down here hasn't improved your vocabulary."

He looked at her full in the eyes. He said steadily, remembering:

"You weren't always as squeamish."

Perhaps not. "Let's go. It's getting dark," said Olive, and, besides there isn't much more to say is there? You've told me where I stand, pretty plainly. I comprehend English, even Elizabethan English."

The tropic night had fallen as tropic nights do, with complete suddenness and complete darkness save for the stars as they left the empty house. He took her arm to guide her. She snatched it away angrily. "Don't touch me!" she ordered out of a very natural reaction. "Sorry," said Bill and grinned in the darkness. He wasn't in the least ashamed. He'd talked like a prig of course and perhaps like that pre-war article, known magnificently as a cad. And he thought he'd made a life enemy. He was right. No one hates you as much as someone who has loved you, or thought she loved you, and perhaps goes on loving you while she hates. But she had had it coming to her, he thought and he didn't care. If she hadn't talked about Nevis he would have let her down easy.

Nevis. Harry Carter. Half a million dollars. God, what a woman! But he didn't say woman to himself.

A big lizard slid away, the undergrowth rustled and Olive turned her ankle. She stumbled, and screamed a small scream. Bill took her arm again. He said: "Here, hang on. You'd better."

OLIVE TO LEAVE

She hung on gratefully enough. She thought . . . it's all over. She thought, it never began really. She stopped suddenly, halting him and reached up. She said low and as near sincerity as she had ever been in all her artificial, empty, constantly stimulated life—"I hate you—like hell. Or should . . . "Good-bye," she said.

She kissed him, hot mouth pressed hard to his. "Easy does it!" said Bill and was childishly delighted and astonished to find no response within himself.

They had reached the car, were standing by it. Olive climbed in without a word and they drove back in a silence that was to say the least heavy with embarrassment. She spoke, however, as they reached the company property. "Let me out at Hayes' will you?" I want to telephone San Juan. I think the crowd will be at the hotel," she said.

Bill took her to the Hayes house as she had asked him to. She said: "Don't wait for me. I'll walk down."

He drove away, reached his home and went into the house. Nevis was there waiting. She had set the table for Maria and was arranging some bougainvillea in low glass bowls. She looked up. She said quietly:

"There's lip rouge on your cheek. Where's Olive?"

Bill grinned and got out his handkerchief.

"I'm at Linda's. Phoning San Juan. I think she'll be leaving us tomorrow."

The slow color flooded Nevis' face. She said: "Bill?" And he came over to her and took her hands dripping wet in his own, regardless of the peering brown face of the inquisitive Maria. He said: "Were you worried." You needn't be. If you think I give a darn for another woman . . . you—you dead game little sport!"

After he had kissed her, she raised her curly, dark head and asked:

"And you won't explain the lip rouge?"

He said slowly:

"Must I? I'd rather not. Will you believe me when I tell you that it is a sort of—let's say a symbol—a farewell," grinned Bill, "to arms?"

Nevis said, eyeing him:

"I suspect you of chivalry. No, you needn't explain."

Color in her cheeks. And sparkle in her eyes. She thought . . . he doesn't care for her . . . he never did! She thought, poor devil! and she didn't mean Bill. She asked happily: "Is that girl ever coming to supper or is she staying at the Hayes?"

Olive arrived, perfectly self-possessed. She said:

"Darling, I'm sorry. I have to leave tomorrow. Howell is coming over for me. I telephoned to see if they had returned to San Juan and they have and Dad's anxious to get back home. You've been a dear to have me here all this time. It's been wonderful. I simply loathe leaving you," she said.

"You must," thought Bill, but said it in reverse, politely: "Must you?" he asked.

"I'm afraid so," she smiled at him briefly.

But she ate nothing and the following day when Howell Moore reached her, having left San Juan before dawn in order to get there in good time, she was ecstatic over her reunion with him, presented him to Bill and Nevis as if he had been a prize pup or something, kissed him openly before them, said, "Oh, Howell, how I've missed you," and promptly and publicly announced her engagement to the concerned young man's obvious amazement and delight.

A good-looking man, a little younger than Olive, with a flexible mouth of the actor and a clear fine skin and splendid eyes and the smile of a good child. There were congratulations and farewells and promises of a meeting in the dim future. Bill and Nevis stood on the veranda and watched the car drive off, the native at the wheel, Olive, her luggage and Moore in the back seat. Nevis said, on a deep breath:

"Did she tell you? Is that what the farewell was all about?"

"Sure, she told me," hed Bill, manfully.

Nevis looked at him, sidelong. She asked:

"Then all this—renunciation. Was it sour grapes?"

He laughed.

"If I say no, I'm no gentleman. If I say yes, I'm a liar. No, then, and she didn't tell me, if you must know the truth."

Nevis said contentedly: "I think I have it already. Hurry up, will you, you'll be late to work."

Watching him go down the steps she was conscious of the sick, dull headache which was always a warning signal of the sharp chills and high fever to come. She didn't care. She turned and went back into the house, her hot eyes grateful for the gloom. She went into the kitchen, gave some directions to Maria, pulled off her clothes, took some quinine and, as Maria came in with a limeade and set it down on the table, Nevis crawled thankfully into bed, to stay there until Bill came home again. As her teeth began to chatter helplessly, she smiled. She pulled a coverlet over her, for the time being. She said to herself . . . I'm so darned happy . . ."

Olive, having departed from the field, with the air of the conqueror who has snatched victory from defeat, returned home to announce her engagement with the utmost publicity. She also proved conclusively, at least to herself, by rationalization and by numerology, that Bill Lancaster should not only change his name but his wife . . . (She had not told Bill that if he had agreed to her plan she would have insisted upon calling cards engraved W. Francis Lancaster.) But that failing, this solution of Bill's problems, she herself would do very well indeed by taking—temporarily at least—the name of Moore. And so the wedding was set for autumn, accompanied by a fanfare of trumpets. Della remarked, writing to Nevis: "They will doubtless be married under a double crossed row of property swords."

And by winter Nevis herself was in New York, if too late to attend the wedding.

The spring had slipped by, quietly enough. Linda Hayes had gone North for the summer. Nevis, having by now discovered that, with a little thought one might go native, decently, and thus help along acclimatization, found herself, at this late date, making certain concessions and adjustments. If she dismissed completely from her mind how one "used to" eat and "used to" dress and "used to" do everything, she could make herself and Bill a lot more comfortable. She tried native dishes, she set her face sternly away from succulent minute steaks and roasts, she planned her meals ahead with Maria, and, by scimping on other things, she managed a large daily quota of ice and sent to San Juan for a freezer. She served Bill, therefore, such of the hot native dishes as appealed to him, the chicken and browned rice and paprika sauce, the occasional rather interesting fish and shell-fish, and served him, too, the strong clear coffee which the depleted system seemed to need. But she had fruit, and lots of it, and she figured out divers ways of varying its monotony, in drinks, salads, ices; and she had avocados, used sometimes as a vegetable, sometimes in salads and often as butter, when very ripe; and she procured such fresh vegetables as were possible, buying seeds and urging Maria's brother to start a small truck garden for her and to attend to it; and she had Della ship her certain delicacies in glass and every evening there was chilled, home-made soup. And Bill said: "Darned if you aren't getting to be the world's best housekeeper!"

"I could have been before," Nevis confessed, laughing, "only I couldn't get away from the kind of food we had at home. So I just didn't bother to try stunts with the sort we have here. That's all. I sure was lazy—and dumb."

She surrendered to circumstances, learned to take a long siesta afternoons, learned to ration her quinine and to go to bed promptly at the first onset of anything approaching fever; learned, too, that one could exercise in such a climate, if one did it properly and in proportion, and persuaded Hayes to let her use one of the company ponies and so sometimes rode out to meet Bill in the comparative cool of the evening or went out with him early in the morning. She made friends among the Spanish families nearby and found a charming simplicity of social connections in their scattered, cool patios and haciendas. She went occasionally to the Sports Club, dragging Bill with her. She gradually becoming attached to life as she was living it.

SUN-TELEGRAPH TOMORROW

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

The activities of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club chapters offers many opportunities for the development of talent among its members. Children who can sing or dance are given an opportunity to perform on the stage, before an audience, at the Saturday morning meetings.

Manager Wear, of the State Theater, Washington, goes a step further in developing the boys and girls in his chapter. During the week the children who wish to appear at the Saturday morning meeting register with Miss Irene Fisher, organist of the theater. Before the meeting the children are given tryouts. When Saturday morning arrives, they assemble on the stage, which is equipped for broadcasting over Station WNBO. The best acts are put on before the microphone over a half-hour period. At the close of the radio program the remaining acts are presented for the club members.

CHILDREN BROADCAST

The following children of Washington, Pa., broadcast from the stage of the State Theater during the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theater Junior Komic Club meeting last Saturday: Velma Bridges, James Rainey, Anthony Bamonti, Bud Pendelton, Rose Mary DeAngelo, Mathew DeAngelo, Peggy Claffey, Patsy Falso, Roberta Baker, Virginia Hinerman, Gale Hartsell, Donna Fay Walker, Charlene Hartzell, Betty Ihrig, Betty Jane Hough, Jasparen Young, Myrtle Shelton, Margaret Barker, Lorena Walters, Donna Merle, Betty Hilberry, Billy Brownlee, Dorothy and Eleanor Baker, Velma McVhell, Ruth Johnson, Margarita Rosetta and Margurite Birmingham. The broadcast closed with "Good Night Sw— ..." sung by the entire club.

The Olympic Confectionary Store, in the State Building, Saturday morning, presented every child at the meeting with a bag of candy.

The retiring officers of Etna Chapter made speeches of thanks to the members for their co-operation. The boys and girls who will serve for the coming four weeks are Patricia Wittman, Mary and Violet Yanke, Betty Weber, Hugo Pinure, Florence Shore and Phyllis McIntyre. These new officers will assist Manager Morty Henderson in arranging programs and conducting meetings.

Now comfortably settled in their new home, Davis Chapter is increasing in attendance each week. These children live in the Hill District, South Side, West End and South Hills. The chapter was organized at the Harris Theater, but with the introduction of vaudeville at the Harris, the club moved to the Davis. W. M. Warren, manager, is providing great entertainment for his Junior Komic Club meetings every week.

Disgraceful

Representative Grenet's Dodging of the Grand Jury Is Much to His Discredit

The public has not been informed why Representative Samuel J. Grenet's testimony was sought by the grand jury investigating Roy D. Schooley's management of the office of the City Treasurer.

The information sought of Grenet may or may not have been of great importance. Even if it was not important, Grenet has been guilty of discreditable conduct in dodging the investigation.

He has been the recipient of many favors from the people of Allegheny County, and one might have supposed that gratitude, if not a sense of civic obligation, would have impelled him to come forward when he learned that the grand jury, representing the people, desired to question him about a public matter.

The failure of county detectives to find Grenet during a three-day search, coupled with the fact that widespread publicity has been given in the newspapers to the fact that his testimony was desired, can mean but one thing—that he has deliberately evaded the subpena.

In a public official this is disgraceful.

Setback of the Volpes

Stripping the Wilmerding Gang of Their Power Benefits The Whole County

Among the official shakeups accompanying reorganization of the borough councils there is one of exceptional interest. We have reference to the ousting of Wilmerding policemen affiliated with the notorious Volpe gang.

The chief of police, a brother-in-law of John Volpe, has been dismissed and other officers either transferred or dropped from the payroll.

Stripping the Volpes of some of their power will be beneficial not only to the people of Wilmerding but to the whole county, for the Volpes' influence extended far beyond the borough lines.

Members of the Volpe gang have been before the courts again and again. They have been accused of bootlegging, crimes of violence and election cheating. Their present setback was accomplished by getting the courts to throw out the fraudulent vote from a district that they controlled.

The Volpes are hard fighters and it can be depended upon that they will strive to regain the power of which the honest citizens and the new Borough Council have shorn them.

Eternal vigilance will be required to keep them from coming back.

Undue Severity

Enforcement of the Game Laws Might Well Be Tempered With a Little Mercy

Back in feudal times the wretched peasants were severely punished if they killed the king's deer or poached on the nobles' estates. That they were starving was not accepted as an excuse.

There is a reminder of those times in several incidents that have occurred in Western Pennsylvania lately. Two poor men have been sentenced to jail for 500 days during the last few weeks, one for attempting to kill deer illegally, the other for being in illegal possession of a deer; and from Greensburg came word yesterday that a poor man had been committed to jail for 10 days because, after killing a rabbit with his automobile, he took it home and ate it instead of turning it over to the game warden.

Killing a rabbit or a deer may be and often is a more serious matter than killing a man, for the justices of the peace before whom violators of the game laws are brought are ruthless, whereas the higher courts which hear homicide cases not infrequently show mercy. For example, only a day or two ago a Pittsburgh man who had killed another in a fist fight and had pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter was paroled.

Public officials having to do with the enforcement of the game laws should not go as far as the District Attorney of Fayette County, who was quoted as saying he would not prosecute any poor man who killed game or caught fish in any manner during the present period of stress; but they might well temper justice with mercy.

Guarding County Funds

Requiring Gilt-Edged Bonds as Securities from Depositories Is a Wise Precaution

Soon after the new county officials were sworn in the Commissioners met with the Controller and the Treasurer and agreed on certain rules for the protection of the county's funds.

One requirement decided upon is that banks designated as county depositories shall put up government or municipal bonds as security for the deposits.

The wisdom of the new precaution has been proved by the city's experience with the Franklin Savings and Trust Company.

The new County Commissioners are showing far more concern over saving money for the people and protecting the public interest than over distributing patronage and planning expenditures. Their course is both novel and refreshing.

An Open Winter

Mildness of the Weather Has Its Disadvantages, but on The Whole Its Has Been a Blessing

A Lawrenceville woman reports that she caught a butterfly in her back yard three days ago—another reminder of the exceptional mildness of the winter.

The openness of the winter has been hard on the dealers in automobile chains and other things that only come into widespread use when ice and snow cover the ground; it has been tough on children who wish to go skating and sled-riding.

But on the whole it has been a blessing. It has permitted construction of roads and buildings to proceed and so has furnished work to men who otherwise might have been unemployed. And it has kept fuel bills down.

It is gratifying to know that if severe weather does come during the remaining winter months—and it probably will—a Coal Relief Association has been formed which stands ready to furnish assistance in keeping poor families comfortable.

And made himself the lord of all
Along the Finnish border,
A glass of beer became a sin
And every patriotic Finn
Was told to climb the wagon in
The name of law and order.

But though he swore that crime would cease,
That all the land would be at peace
And drinking would diminish,
They found it didn't work at all;
And so they nudged him off the wall
And Humpty Dumpty took a fall—
In other words, his Finnish.

Don't Reason With a Woman

"A woman's tears can be dried by reason," says Prof. Anton J. Carlson of the University of Chicago. "Talk to her calmly. Don't do anything, except reason with her. It can be done." Oh CAN it?

* * *

THAT'S news—to about 50,000,000 married men. Wouldn't you like to see their faces, when they read it? And hear their silvery laughter?

* * *

A woman can stand a lot; but if there is anything she can NOT endure, when she is enjoying a good hard fit of hysterics or lachrymal self-pity, it is what a man calls his "calm REASON."

A kiss might do the trick. Or a good swift biff in the eye might bring her out of the ether. Best of all, a rousing old row would give her a chance to let off steam and chase her wails. But "reason?" Never! Would you reason with a cat when you're giving it a bath and getting soap in its eyes?

* * *

Oh, yes, there are lots of things that will dry a woman's tears. They can sometimes be dried up with a simple piece of paper—provided it is a check for the right amount.

* * *

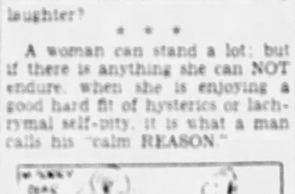
And there are ermine and sable, which will often stop up a woman's tears—if they come in the form of a nice new coat.

* * *

But the most effective way to stop a jealous woman's tears is by grasping her tenderly and passionately with one arm, while you gesticulate with the other and swear that the "other woman" is nothing but a "cartoon" or a "fat old hag."

* * *

No woman ever listens to a man's "reason," even when she's perfectly calm and sane; much less when she's all wrought up and feeling sorry for herself.



The only reasons a woman wants to hear, when she is sore, are your reasons for loving her. Flattery laid on thick and skillfully will soothe her wounded vanity, and an ardent kiss will take the words right out of her mouth. But "calm reasoning" is just gasoline on the flame of her wrath. What right have you to be "calm" when SHE'S all wrought up, anyhow?

* * *

In some circles the only way in which a man can "reason" with a woman is by throwing things at her or knocking her down. THAT'S convincing! In more civilized circles, he can get the same effect by slamming the door behind him, and rushing off to the club and getting tight. This gives her something else to worry about and time to think it over and powder her nose.

* * *

You can flatter a woman, cajole her, fight with her or bully her—but you can't REASON with her. Don't try!

* * *

A woman doesn't want a reason. She wants what she WANTS—whether it's your love or your money or a diamond bangle or her own way!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Things are so tough in dance halls adjacent to Broadway that, aside from the entrance ballyhoo, girl cappers are patrolling the boulevards to drum up trade. Brightly rouged ladies sidle up to a prospect and whisper: "Girls for every taste! Follow me."

And they lead the victims to various joints. In comparison to some of the resorts, the old Haymarket was a shining mark of respectability. Dancing is only a prelude to a gyp. Many charmers have apartments near where knock-out drops are on tap.

I was stopped by one hennaed maiden while hurrying alongside the Roxy Theater the other evening about 10. "Why, the rush Sugar?" she called. I slowed up in exquisite panic. Who wouldn't, called "Sugar" at my age? Then, as they say in movie circles, I was "contacted."

"Just around the corner 200 beautiful ladies are waiting for a swell guy like you!" So eager was the scout that she tugged at my coat lapel to accompany her. I pleaded a pressing engagement but promised to drop in later and "ask for Gertrude."

Gertrude, I was told, was a slim, blonde "who perfectly adores a good time." She was the favorite of a well known millionaire, but liked to play hookey from the love nest now and then to meet nice gentlemen, dance awhile, then go places and see things. "Very refined," she ballyhooed.

Not only are there sidewalk salesladies but they loiter in hotel lobbies and approach lonely transients who may be looking for a merry evening among the tungstens. Also those mysterious phone calls to drop into dance halls. "A girl named Claire is dying to meet you!" says a voice.

One of the nightly group of autograph hunters who gape in hyena half circles around stage doors salvaged a first rate job out of her unusual calling. A stenographer out of a job and possessed of a celebrity fixation, she attracted Sue Carol, a movie star, and is now in Hollywood to take a secretarial post.

Edison Marshall, the novelist and game hunter, calls New York parlor bolshiviks "pinks." Thus he distinguishes them from out-and-out Reds and regards them as far more poisonous. He sums up the usual Red as the deluded fellow who thinks he should share the fortunes of John D. But the "pink" is the mealy-mouthed intellectual who affects long hair and soiled linen and praises Russia but is careful not to go there to live.

* * *

They tell of another novelist who lost his entire savings in gyp real estate bonds, was released from a publishing house contract and on top of all received a cable his wife was divorcing him in Paris. "What rotten luck!" a friend consoled. "It is," he replied. "As misfortunes go, mine could not be improved upon."

Thingumbubs: Ted Woodyard owns 22 country weeklies in West Virginia and lives at Pierre's. . . Three years ago Morton Downey was planning to give up his career as a singer for something more lucrative. . . Anita Loos, planning to retire, has signed a contract to write more scenarios. . . Mayor Walker returned a $10,000 check to indorse a hat named for him. . . Boris Minnevitch discovered the radio girl Frances Bowden. . . The Shanhai Trap of the International Bar Flies is building a clubhouse on The Bund. . . . Lowell Thomas dines nightly in a tea room.

A ghastly story concerns a Broadway butterfly, jilted by a rich young bachelor. Shortly after he was stricken with double pneumonia but recovered. The discarded maid was told of his recovery at a speakeasy bar. Lifting her glass she cried: "If that's pneumonia, here's to leprosy!"

Fashion foible: The Prince of Wales, per private letter, has become a sartorial monochrome in blue. Blue shirt, suit, collar, tie, kerchief and a blue stoned ring. As a startling relief his socks flame a brilliant red. That's princing it!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

The most important force in the world around you is People.

The most important factor in your own program is People.

The most important job you have to learn is how to get along with People. The success and happiness of your life will depend on how well you learn that job.

Does that statement surprise you? Have you always thought—were you always taught—that your success and happiness would depend on your own smartness and goodness? Probably.

BUT SMARTNESS AND GOODNESS WON'T GET YOU VERY FAR. STRANGER. UNLESS OTHER PEOPLE APPRECIATE THEM. So if you want to get along with life, you must get along with People. And the first thing to learn is this:

YOU MUST TAKE PEOPLE AS THEY ARE AND NOT AS YOU'D LIKE THEM TO BE.

Which right-off-bang will hand you an awful wallop! For people will never be what you thought they would or should be. They will never fit in with your theories. They will never come up to your standards.

[illegible] the people you know and love best will do the most unexpected, irritating, idiotic and actually vicious things; and you'll want to stop them. You'll want to make them see that they're raising Cain with their own lives as well as your's. You'll feel sad and mad. You'll rush in with grieved reproaches and good advice.

Don't! People must live their own lives and you must learn to let them. They must live their own lives because that is the only way in which they can find out about life—that particular truth which fits them.

You may not admire their method. You may think that your way of living is much better than theirs—and possibly it is. But that isn't the point. Their way of living is the only way by which they can learn to live, and it's up to you to keep hands off.

So take People as they come.

Deal with People as they are.

Help them if you can.

Protect yourself against them if you must.

But don't sit in judgment over them.

Don't feel personally affronted if they don't fit into your scheme of things.

Don't expect too much of People—or too little.

Remember, if they disappoint you, you also may not be the perfect treat to them.

Be tolerant, too, and sympathetic with People, and co-operate with them when you can: BUT DO NOT LEAN ON THEM.

DO NOT MAKE ANY OF THEM NOT EVEN THOSE YOU HOLD MOST DEAR, RESPONSIBLE FOR YOUR PROGRESS AND YOUR HAPPINESS.

YOUR LIFE IS YOUR OWN BUSINESS.

Do not expect other people to make it a success.

Do not blame other people if it is a failure.

Do not complain if you do not find perfect understanding, perfect companionship. Do not be bitter or surprised if you find yourself lonely, even in the midst of love. You will always be lonely . . . always a stranger . . though you are surrounded by millions. Never were truer words written than these:

"Men are spirits clad in veils.
"Man by man was never seen.
"All our striving somehow fails
"To lift that which lies between."

Accept your own veil. Accept and respect the other fellow's. Be a brother to your fellow man.

BUT KEEP YOUR COMPANY MANNERS ON.

That is the secret of getting along with People.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

To the Hills

Ah, to turn my footsteps backward
To the hills I loved of old,
With their emerald summits outlined
On the sunset's molten gold;
With the proud young pine trees lifting
Upward to the heaven's blue,
And the wild flowers breathing fragrance
To the breeze the whole day through!

Ah, to see the mountains mirrored
In the river, clear and deep,
And to watch the dusky twilight
Upward from the valleys creep,
While the whip-poor-will is calling
To his mate his sweet refrain;
How the happy memories lure me
To the mountains once again!

Would I find them there—the visions
That were once the joy of youth,
When the earth lay like a garden
And its flowers were love and truth,
Where the minds of men were lofty
And their motives pure and good,
And the whole wide world was banded
In a loving brotherhood?

Text For Today Let thy work appear unto thy servants, and thy glory unto their children. And let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us: and establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands establish thou it.—Psalms, xc:16, 17.

Tariff; Trade Revival Paramount Need

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The decision of the Democratic leaders in the House in Washington to report, probably at once, and pass this week a tariff bill, before taking up the tax question on the floor, is justified. There is a sound reason for giving precedence to the tariff. Mr. Snell, the Republican leader, whose activities as a member of the Rules Committee under the old regime contributed so much to forcing the destructive Grundy act upon the country, wants the tax bill first. But just now Mr. Snell is not one of three czars of the House, and he will take what he gets from those who now are in control. Something might be said for the Snell view were it possible that the limited tariff revision bill would consume many days or weeks, but it won't.

As far as the interest of business is concerned its improvement depends wholly upon the revival of trade. If there were a normal trade, if we still had foreign markets for the absorption of the surplus of our factories and fields, there would be no hard times. And we shall never have good times again until something is done to revive trade. We, under the rule of Mr. Snell and his associates, stupidly ignored the warning of all economists and sane business men in the enactment of a tariff act that made trade between nations all but impossible. It has led to retaliation and resulted in the conversion of nations into airtight compartments. There never will be a restoration of any country so long as that condition continues.

* * *

Vote of the People Condemned the Tariff

In the campaign of 1930 and the by-elections of 1931 the tariff was an issue. The people voted a condemnation. But the Senate and the President are in possession of the Republicans—just as in 1911 when the Democrats had the House. A general revision is now impossible for that reason; and for another—we cannot now act without understandings with other nations that have met our Chinese wall with one of their own. We are forced to reciprocal action in the tariff as a whole.

Just what measure will emerge from the Democratic committee will be known this week. It will not be drastic, and from every point of view it will be defendable. The plans suggested by Mr. Rainey and Senator Cordell Hull take the new condition created by the retaliation of other nations into consideration. One plan provides for reductions conditional in their operation upon reciprocal action in other nations; another for the calling of an international tariff conference to get the world back to a common sense basis of trade. These plans will disturb no legitimate business interest and will satisfy business common sense.

* * *

General Revision Not Possible Now

The measure will not provide for a general revision by any means. That would require much time. It is said that among the few reductions will be those on sugar, cement, lumber and shingles. There is a reason for this—precisely the same reason that impelled Oscar Underwood, 20 years ago, confronted with an opposition majority in the Senate and a hostile President, to confine revisions to a few of the more outrageous schedules. The result was a general approval.

We know enough about sugar, lumber and cement to know that the rates on these are unfair to the public and unnecessary. We also know something, too much perhaps, about the manner in which the rates on cement and lumber were increased through a combination of the two interests. This combination was scandalous. It was generally known at the time. But the failure of the cement men to "deliver," after the lumber men had "delivered" in the case of cement, led to squawking from the lumber men and the cat was out of the bag. The little misfortune was rectified later, however, and the trade between the two interests was consummated.

It is time to set that bargain of private, against public, interest aside.

Tariff Commission Loses Country's Faith

It is possible, too, that the tariff plan will include action on the Tariff Commission. The recent reorganization of the commission facilitating the work of packing it and the use of the flexibility clause would justify the ending of the mockery entirely. No one today has faith in the commission. And under the flexibility clause, which is more than debatable in propriety, and has never been used for the benefit of the consumers, we have nothing more than a transfer from the legislative to the executive power of a limited right to levy taxes. This would be bad under all circumstances; but when the executive power is in the hands of a President who has lost the confidence of the people there is nothing that can be said for it.

The sole purpose of the commission originally was to provide a permanent body of experts charged with the duty of collecting facts scientifically, and without reference to party or privilege, to be transmitted to Congress to assist it in determining upon the justice of a schedule. The theory and it was a sound one, was that it is utterly impossible for members of the House and Senate with their many duties and interests, to devote the time necessary to exhaustive investigations extending into all countries. The commission was intended, as Senator Beveridge who launched the fight for one in 1909, explained on the floor and in letters to John Dalzell, to serve as an agency of Congress. It has become the tool of the Executive, and this is manifestly wrong.

House Will Act Speedily on Proposals

But whatever is proposed to be disposed of in the House speedily. That body thus far has demonstrated that under wise and cautious leadership, such as it has, business can be transacted without unreasonable delay. It has made a splendid record in progress, and it is not apt to depart from its present method.

Apropos of method, Henry Rainey, the Democratic leader, has announced a plan which is business-like and highly commendable. It has been the policy in the debates to depart from the matter under discussion to take up other matters having no relation to it. A bill for an appropriation for harbor improvements should be disposed of quickly and with little debate; but the debate has often been strung to great length because members have made pureley political speeches, and tariff speeches, and foreign relation speeches, under the pretense of discussing the subject before House or Senate.

Mr. Rainey proposes that debate shall be confined to the subject before the House. In intervals between the consideration of specific measures, he proposes that the House shall resolve itself into a committee of the whole for the consideration of the state of the Union; and members may then discuss anything they wish. This was the old method of procedure, and it was infinitely better than that into which we have drifted.

Thus far the Democrats in the House have conducted themselves in a fashion to command public confidence; and, through the policy board they have created with the Democrats in the Senate there is every indication that they will continue to deserve that confidence.
